Spanish Students Parade, But Disband at U. S. Embassy.

MADRID—(AP)—Hundreds of students carrying signs saying "Long Live Independent Spanish America" paraded in central Madrid today and disbanded in front of the United States embassy.

Stopping in front of the Uruguayan embassy, the students shouted vivas for Uruguay and qualified sources said the manifestation was one of satisfaction over the Uruguayan statement that cession of bases was not involved in negotiations with Washington.

Arriving in front of the United States embassy the students were asked by police to disband and folded their banners and went their ways without incident.

5,000 TO SHARE IN YULE MELON

Christmas Savings Checks Go Out to Mansfielders Within Next 7 Days.

Nearly a quarter of a million dollars will be in the hands of 5,000 persons in Mansfield and Richland county next week when banks mail out Christmas savings checks to subscribers.

Mansfield banking officials said it was likely that most of it would find its way into cash drawers of Mansfield retail stores during the Christmas buying season.

Some of the money, of course, will go back into savings accounts or will be used to take care of debts contracted by subscribers during the past year, officials said.

According to an estimate made by banking officials this week, at least $220,000 will be sent out to persons next Wednesday and Thursday.

Mansfield citizens who annually regret not taking advantage of the Christmas savings plan will get a chance to start a 1941 account the first week in December, when banks begin accepting Christmas savings money for the next holiday season. Most banks in the city work the plan on a weekly basis, with amounts paid into accounts ranging from 50 cents to $10.

Although 1940 Christmas savings are down 10 per cent in comparison with last year's savings, banking officials expect next year's accounts to exceed the 1940 level because of the predicted increase in business during the next year.

WHO CARES?

That's Name of Boat—He Wasn't Being Smart Officer.

GREEN BAY, Wis.—(AP)—Robert King reported to police the theft of equipment from his motorboat. Police asked for the name of the boat.

"Who cares," said King. "Well, we do. Come now—" the sergeant replied. "Why that's the name—Who Cares?"

'We Want Cake,' Battery Says, 'We've Got Bread!'

Packages of 'Stuff' Eagerly Awaited By Mansfield Boys at Camp; Meals Good, Ohio Food's Better.

Marie Antonette's classic wisecrack "if they haven't got bread, let 'em eat cake" is paraphrased in the lusty yell of Battery D boys from Camp Shelby: "We've got bread, but we want cake!"

A news-filled letter from Sgt. Dale Rowan says that the big hour of each day is that in which the mail is distributed and every man looks for that package of "stuff" which the gals promised them before they left here—"stuff" being candy, cookies and cake.

"The meals are good down here," Rowan said, "but—the things from Ohio taste so much better." The Yankee yells in this southern camp are, according to Rowan, "Write to me, honey," and "Send a cake, Mom."

The army is making every effort to keep the morale of National Guardsmen at the highest possible standard, Rowan said. Provisions are being made to provide athletic equipment, reading material in libraries, establishment of service clubs, motion picture theaters and hostesses for the camp. There will be guest houses with rooms for visiting relatives, cafeterias and dining rooms, soda fountains, and a recreational building in each regimental area.

About 60 per cent of the original work planned for the camp has been done.

"Every man in the battery is a volunteer," Rowan said. (Continued on Page 6, Col. 2)

COURT DECISION FAVORS CHAINS

Motion To Compel Payment of More Taxes Ruled Out.

COLUMBUS, O.—(AP)—The supreme court again has decided in favor of two grocery chains in litigation to compel them to pay an $1,000,000 additional in state sales taxes.

The court is striking the second amendment of a petition of Hugh M. Foster, owner of the Kroger Grocery and Meat Market, who had asked the tribunal to take similar action against the first petitioner.

Foster also asked the court to compel the state to commission to collect $500,000 from the Kroger Grocery and Meat Market, and $400,000 from the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company.

Pages of today's News-Journal signal the opening of the Christmas shopping season in Mansfield. The edition includes stories on Christmas, pictures and advertising, listing hundreds of gift suggestions. The edition includes 32 pages in four sections.

Merchants believe that with the increasing employment resulting from the national defense program business will be better this year than it has been for the past several years. Additional clerks have been taken on at most of the stores.

For the present store hours will remain the same, 9 a. m. to 5:30 p. m., but undoubtedly will be extended during the last week before the holiday, Lodde said.

During Christmas week the Mansfield Parks Association and the Retail Merchants will broadcast Christmas carols over the downtown district in the afternoons and evenings.

MANSFIELDERS OFFER THANKS

Day Observed In Homes and Churches; Provision Made For Needy.

With most of the world embroiled in wars and threats of wars, with carnage rampant in Europe and pestilence hanging like a dark shadow over millions, Mansfield people took time today to offer sincere and devout thanks that they live in America, "sweet land of liberty."

Celebrating Thanksgiving in homes and in churches, Americans today knew that the holiday held a deeper significance than in past years, and were thankful for something more than well filled tables.

The city took cognizance of the day by closing up all business places except restaurants, factories, wholesale and retail stores, and all public offices were closed.

Public, parochial and private schools closed yesterday afternoon for the remainder of the week, after having special programs appropriate for the season.

As a pre-Thanksgiving gesture the Volunteers of America yesterday gave out more than 6,000 articles of clothing to children. Officers said that the clothing is collected over the city during the summer and given out at this time.

WILLKIE GROUP NOW DISBANDED

National Committee of Democrats For Willkie Out of Picture.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The national committee of Democrats for Willkie has disbanded its campaign organization.

Alan Valentine, the committee's executive director, said yesterday the future status of each state and local organization of the Democrats-for-Willkie "rests with them."

The national committee included Lewis W. Douglas, former New Deal budget director, and John W. Hanes, former undersecretary of the treasury in the Roosevelt administration.

OMAHA, Neb.—(AP)—Police Lieutenant Louis Worm is trying to retrieve his retriever (who disappeared while retrieving a bird) but the expense is getting to be more than he can bear.

Long distance phone calls from helpful persons trying to unite Worm and his blue-ribbon Springer spaniel now total $25.52. The latest was a call (toll charge $1.50) describing a dog that wasn't his.

disse, according to V. H. Lodde secretary of the Retail Merchants association.

There won't be a retail business place in the city after tomorrow that hasn't a wide range of suggestions for Christmas gifts, including grocery and drug stores, department stores, hardware, jewelry, ready-to-wear and specialty shops and departments of all kinds.

ASK SHOWDOWN ON CIO POLICY TOWARD REDS

Anti-Communist Groups Press For Convention Vote To Determine Stand.

CLAIM RESOLUTION DRAWN

Delegates Hear Declaration Against Communism Up For Balloting Today.

(By Associated Press)

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—A declaration against the philosophy of Communism, Nazism and Fascism was reported drafted and ready for a vote in the CIO convention today.

For a week there has been open agitation for CIO action on such a policy and for a showdown between so-called left and right wing groups.

Proposals calling for the adoption of this policy have been under consideration in the resolutions committee since CIO members gathered here in their third convention to determine policies they would follow after John L. Lewis retires from CIO's presidency.

Since Lewis and a group of labor leaders established CIO here five years ago to engage in a militant campaign to unionize big industry there have been charges that adherents of Communism had obtained a foothold in the new movement and were active in organizing work.

During the past week the drive to bring about a showdown on CIO's attitude toward the thorny issue became one of the convention's major activities.

The Amalgamated Clothing Workers' union headed by Sidney Hillman, labor member of the national defense commission, played a leading part in the drive, supporting a resolution to condemn Communism, Fascism and Nazism.

EGGS GOT HIM

Patrolman Spots Suspect as He Eats Half Dozen.

Douglas R. Boncutter, 22, Shelby, a former reformatory inmate is in prison again today and because Patrolman Howard Schuck saw him eating a breakfast of six eggs in a local restaurant yesterday and flashing a bankroll.

Schuck thought Boncutter answered the description given to police by Dudley Lea, Findlay salesman, of a man who had slugged and robbed him of $20 in a north side alley, Tuesday. He returned to headquarters where Lea identified a photograph of Boncutter.

The latter's breakfast was interrupted by Schuck and city detectives who took the former O. S. R. inmate to city jail. He will face charges of highway robbery in a preliminary hearing in municipal court tomorrow.

Italian Announce Capture of British Commander, Pilots

ROME—(AP)—The capture of the new British commander of the British air forces in the middle east, Air Marshal Owen Tudor Royd, was announced today by the Italian high command.

Tudor, former commander of the British balloon barrage forces, and six other men, including four officers, were captured in Sicily when a British plane made a forced landing, its communique said.

He was reported enroute from England to take over the post when his plane went down.

Born a World War veteran joined the Royal Air Force in 1916 after serving in the Indian army. He was director of air ministry personnel services from 1936 to 1938.

LONDON—(AP)—The air ministry said today that Air Marshal Owen Tudor was missing but that further details were unavailable.

Envoy Leaves For Berlin To Map Alliance

Observers Believe Groundwork for New Military Pact Already Shaped; Hitler And Goering Leave Vienna After Completing Hungary's Agreement.

BERLIN—(AP)—General Ion Antonescu, premier of Rumania, arrived in Germany today, bringing his country to the fore as the probable next recruit for the expanding Axis alliance.

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN—With her Dictator General Ion Antonescu on his way here, Rumania stepped to the fore today as the likely next recruit for the expanding Axis.

Since Antonescu recently conferred in Rome with Italian Premier Mussolini, observers here presumed that the groundwork already has been prepared for Rumania to follow Hungary's footsteps in joining the 10-year military, political and economic compact with Germany, Italy and Japan.

Vienna, once proud capital of Nazi-annexed Austria and scene of yesterday's addition of Hungary to the new four-power pact, again became just another German provincial city as the array of diplomats departed.

Adolf Hitler, Field Marshal General Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the German high command, and Joachim von Ribbentrop, the Nazi foreign minister, left last night.

Observers viewed Hungary's formal enrollment within the Axis as another step in a diplomatic drive toward the Mediterranean which—with the addition of other southeastern European nations—might open an Axis highway all the way to the land frontiers of Greece and Turkey.

In this connection, it was noted that German troops already are on Rumanian soil and that informed sources have declared the visit of King Boris of Bulgaria to Hitler last Sunday "served the new political order in Europe."

The possibility that little Slovakia, remnant of German-disolved Czechoslovakia, also may sign up was indicated by the well-connected Dienst Aus Deutschland Commentary, which disclosed that Slovakia's premier, Prof. Bela Tuka, is expected shortly in Berlin.

Turkey, however, took some of the edge off of Axis enthusiasm in the Balkans by her strong anti-Axis attitude over Hungary's entry into the pact and the assertion of authoritative Turks that their government would refuse to approve.

RAIDS: Swarms of German Bombers Attack British Towns

LONDON—(AP)—London's sirens sounded two daylight alerts in quick succession today, shortly after raiders were reported over scattered towns in England. The raiders defied a gale over the channel to make their daylight stabs at Britain.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Terrific anti-aircraft fire was reported today to have taken the sting out of the Nazis' second successive night of "all out" raiding on Britain's vital Midlands and the government described the attacks as "intermittent and on a minor scale."

Apparently trying to strike another blow similar to that at Coventry a week ago, swarms of raiders poured over an east Midlands town during the night but were said to have been dispersed by ground guns after less than two hours of incendiary bomb-dropping.

—first step in the technique of total air war.

A British communique said "a number of people were killed and injured" in the Midlands, where "fire was started and high explosive bombs demolished some houses and damaged others" in several towns. Attacks on other parts of England, including London, were labeled "generally ineffective" and the toll of dead and injured was reported to have been small.

British bombers, authoritative sources in London reported, carried out overnight attacks on air bases in German-occupied territory, on a Nazi freight yard and on the submarine base at Lorient, in occupied France.

The all-clear sounded in London a short time after dawn, ending a night of light raids marked by long intervals without any Nazi air activity.

Although the night's attacks were not so widespread as the assaults Tuesday night, when a nine-hour raid left a dozen Midlands towns strewn with wreckage and dead and wounded, observers in the east Midlands sector said during the early night hours that

FLIE: Italians Retreat as Greeks Strike Center of Lines

ATHENS—(AP)—A spearhead Greek thrust through the center of the Italian lines, setting the Fascist forces to hasty flight at a point six miles within Albania, was the high spot of Greek successes reported today all along the 100-mile ragged battlefront from the Ionian sea to Koritza, Albania.

A Greek government spokesman said the central breakthrough occurred at Mertzani, Albania, west of the Aous river and northwest of Koritza, Greece.

Leaving munitions, arms, tanks, automobiles and laggard troops behind, the Italians are retreating so rapidly that the bayonet-handling Greeks are hard put to keep up with them he said.

The Greek high command listed 200 automobiles among the booty captured. The Athens radio predicted a decisive phase of the war was imminent.

In the north, the Greek command also announced, its hardy mountaineer soldiers had won

Car Loads of Gifts In Mansfield Stores for Yule Shoppers

Tomorrow officially opens Mansfield's Christmas shopping season and car loads of gift suggestions valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars will be spread in tempting array before the eyes of the shipping public.

In keeping with the precedent set last year by President Roosevelt, the Christmas season opens one week earlier, thus giving shoppers four weeks and a half in which to complete their holiday buying.

Street decorations are expected to be completed by tomorrow night and the colored lights will be turned on Saturday evening. Central park will be dotted with Christmas trees, the fountain beautifully decorated and every white-way lamp post in the city will be decorated with two Christmas trees and lights, and will be topped with a lighted wreath.

There will be green "stringers" across the downtown streets, much as they were last year.

Store windows will have little doubt as to the season while in teriors of stores will be daily decorated. Merchants have been working for several weeks on plans for decorations and for displaying their stocks of merchandise, according to V. H. Lodde secretary of the Retail Merchants association.

There won't be a retail business place in the city after tomorrow that hasn't a wide range of suggestions for Christmas gifts, including grocery and drug stores, department stores, hardware, jewelry, ready-to-wear and specialty shops and departments of all kinds.

European War Conditions to Curb White House Dinners

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — State entertaining at the White House—occasions for gold braid and the latest in evening gowns—will be limited this season to four receptions.

Due to European war conditions and "because the press of work is so heavy" the White House announced last night it had been decided to omit all official dinners as well as the diplomatic reception which is usually the opening party of the season.

The first reception of the 1940-41 season will be that for the judiciary on Tuesday night, Dec. 17. On Tuesday, Jan. 7, a reception will be held for officials of the treasury, post office, interior, agriculture, commerce and labor departments and federal agencies.

The congressional reception will be held on Thursday night, Jan. 16, and the army and navy reception, Thursday, Jan. 23, will close the official state season.

The official dinners—the cabinet dinner, the diplomatic dinner, the vice president's dinner, dinner of the chief justice and the supreme court, and the speaker's dinner — also were omitted last season.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said it had been decided not to hold the diplomatic reception—considered the nation's swankiest affair—because of war conditions in Europe and the feeling it might be embarrassing to members of the diplomatic corps here.

For the same reasons the diplomatic dinner and reception were omitted during President Wilson's first administration.

Despite the curtailed official entertaining, life at the White House will not be too somber. A number of parties have been planned.

The first of these is on Dec. 14 when Mrs. Roosevelt will entertain the "Gridiron Widows" and newspaper women while newspaper men, members of the Gridiron club, are holding their annual dinner for the president.

Prowler Victim Now Keeps His Spare Under Bed.

DALLAS —(AP)—The best place for a spare tire, Fennie Clark told police, is under the bed.

Thieves stole his spare tire. Next night they took the radio aerial off his car. An insurance company replaced the tire. Clark still was worried about the robberies so he put the new tire under his bed.

Three hours later he awoke, found prowlers had visited his car a third time. But they got no spare tire.

to give the Barons their sixth victory in seven starts. Cleveland got off to a flying start and led 3-1 at the end of the first period, but the Eagles came back for one in the second and tied it up on Gus Mancuso's counter in the third. Milford's goal came on the face-off play for the overtime.

The victory lengthened Cleveland's margin over the Pittsburgh Hornets and Hershey Bears only other western division clubs to see action last night. The Hornets went down to a 2-1 defeat before Springfield, while Hershey took over exclusive possession of second place by tying Philadelphia 3-3 in an overtime match.

Springfield made its first score in the second period when Len Hallidoron made good a pass from Lloyd Finkbeiner, and notched the clincher in the final session on Freddie Thurner's unassisted tally. Eddie Convey saved the Hornets from a shutout when he beat the Springfield goalie with two seconds of play remaining.

The Bears came from behind, ramming home two goals in the second and third periods to earn their tie with the Ramblers. Philadelphia scored three times in the opening period, added another in the second and their fifth in the third. Although no goals were scored in the extra period it was enlivened by two fights.

The Springfield-Indianapolis game is the only one scheduled for tonight.

RUMANIA GETS READY TO JOIN AXIS POWERS

Dictator General on Way To Berlin To Prepare For Military Alliance.

any passage of German forces through Bulgaria, even if Turkey were guaranteed against attack.

If, as many in the Balkans fear, the Axis diplomatic expansion foreshadows a military drive in the Mediterranean war theater, no big offensive was believed to be likely before next spring.

(Informed observers in Bern, Switzerland, said it was improbable that two necessities—efficient, swift supply lines through the Balkans in the east and Spain's cooperation in the west—could be fulfilled before then.

The only possible German military action in that direction before the winter is over, they said, would be aid for Italy's invasion of Greece.)

The National Zeitung of Essen, which often speaks for Reichsmarschal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, emphasized that Hungary's incorporation in the Rome-Berlin-Axis alliance had military as well as political importance.

The brief Vienna meeting also disposed of various commercial and financial problems between Germany and Hungary.

Long Range Bombers To Go To Britain

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Huge long range bombers and bomb sights to go with them made up a new installment today in the program of aid to Britain.

The army announced that 26 four-engine Consolidated bombers were being made available for British purchase, disclosed that the Sperry bombsight had been released, and indicated that 20 "flying fortresses" might be the next installment of aerial assistance.

The Consolidated bombers, credited with a 3,000 mile range, would be capable of carrying a full bomb load to almost any existing target area in Europe. From bases in the British Isles, they could strike at any objective within 1,500 miles and then return. Or they could operate on even longer missions by shuttling between airbases in England and British bases in the Mediterranean theater.

The release of these bombers was made known by General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, at a press conference yesterday. He announced that the 26 bombers originally ordered by the army from the Consolidated Aircraft company at San Diego, Calif., were being made available for purchase by the British as fast as they came off the production line.

It was his understanding, he said, that the first of these ships was delivered last Saturday and that the others would be turned over at a steadily increasing rate between now and March 1.

Marshall revealed at the same time that the army already had made available to the British the Sperry bombsight—a mechanism used by the United States air corps before the present jealously guarded Norden bombsight replaced it. Some military sources describe the Sperry sight as very efficient equipment, although it does not match the high efficiency of the newer Norden sight.

Marshall said flatly that no bombers released for British purchase would have the Norden sight, which has been developed by the navy and subsequently adopted by both branches of the armed services.

The chief of staff then announced that the negotiations were under way for the release to the British of 20 B-17C bombers—the long distance "flying fortresses" made by the Boeing Aircraft corporation of Seattle, Wash.

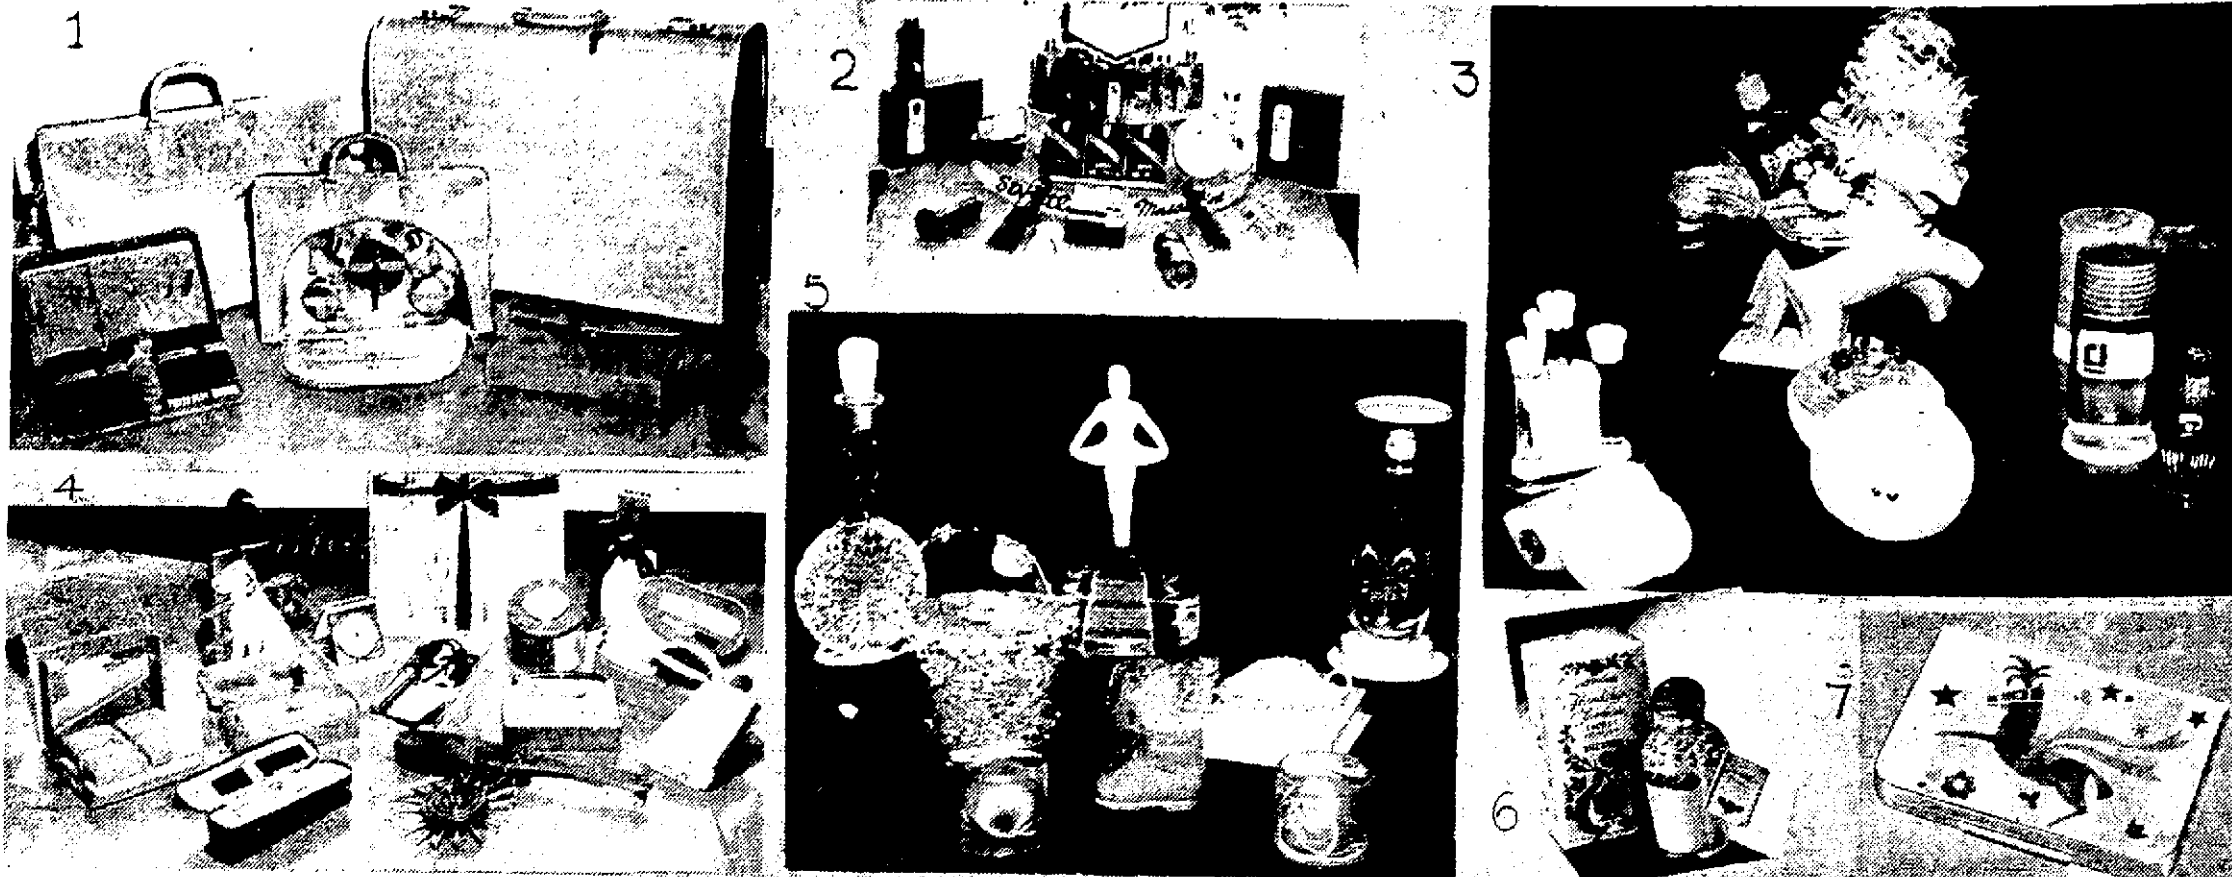

Asked if these ships would be ones already delivered to the United States army or others scheduled for delivery in the near future, he said that would depend upon whether it was faster to substitute the Sperry for the secret Norden bombsight in existing planes or in machines still on the production line.

In his announcement that the British were to receive the Sperry bombsight, Marshall said that the British had been using the Sperry sight for some time. He said that the British had been using the Sperry sight for some time. He said that the British had been using the Sperry sight for some time.

Gift Suggestions of Traveling Equipment, Toilet Accessories

Stockings might bulge a bit on Christmas morning if they're filled with some of the items pictured above, but it would undoubtedly be worth a pair of stockings to have Santa leave a few of these gifts. (1) All of this traveling equipment is of saddle leather. The center case is a fitted one for milady, and the small ones in the foreground are fitted with brushes and other traveling accessories for the gentlemen. The large bag is a two-suitcase, and the other is for short week-end or business trips. (2) Shaving soap, skin bracer, talc, toilet soap and cologne are as popular a gift with men as perfume with women these days. (3) Speaking of perfume, these special Christmas novelties include a gift horse with "Blue Grass" cologne tied to its back, a tower of perfumes, a white plush snowball filled with three subtle fragrances, "Tailspin" perfume and cologne in red, white and blue packages, and then of course, all kinds of sweet-smelling toilet soaps. (4) To make "his" life a more pleasant one are such gift items as military brushes, long-handled clothes brushes, trouser pressers, traveling clocks, cigaret boxes with clock tops, tie racks and garment covers. (5) Cologne in shapely crystal bottles, sachet boules, plectrum buckets filled with flower petals, and yes, even Santa's boot filled with perfume are still other gift ideas, as are bathsalts (6) and compacts (7). Note: You may learn at which Mansfield stores these garments can be purchased by calling The News-Journal, Canal 4251.

MANSFIELDERS OFFER THANKS

of year, without cost. More than 600 children received an average of ten items of clothing each at the Volunteers headquarters, 290 North Main street, and today there was a plain, but warm, substantial meal served to the men who are without homes.

The Friendly House distributed well-filled baskets to the neediest of the families in the settlement district. People turned to the churches last night and today in order to more fittingly express the deep thanks which the entire nation feels at this time. This morning the congregations of First Presbyterian, United Presbyterian, Congregational, First Christian and United Brethren held point services at the latter church, and at First Lutheran the congregation assembled at 9 a. m.

Other churches of the city held thank services last night, several of them jointly. A number of former Mansfielders came home for the day and in most homes there were family gatherings around well-filled tables. Nor were the people in the institutions forgotten, for in all of them there were holiday menus.

Patients at the Richland County Tuberculosis sanatorium ate their fill of turkey today through the generosity of the successful candidates of the recent election. The officials-elect contributed the fund to buy turkeys for the hospital. Pumpkin pies for the occasion were given by a Sunday school class at First Presbyterian church, and three cases of soft drinks were given to patients by the Delano lodge auxiliary.

LUMBER FIRE

Flames Cause $500,000 Loss In Massachusetts Blaze.

NORWOOD, Mass. — A spectacular general alarm fire, fed by a million feet of lumber, today swept the Norwood Lumber company with a loss estimated at $500,000.

The fire chief Alonzo Earle said the fire was of incendiary origin and relayed the information to the state authorities.

Walter Dolan of Norwood, president of the lumber company, said a $100,000 general alarm fire swept the yard two years ago.

Churches held special Thanksgiving services for communicants seeking spiritual reassurance in a world at war. The president's proclamation had called on Americans to "give thanks for our preservation" in a year which saw "calamity and sorrow" fall upon other nations.

The Atlanta Constitution swept all war news from its front page and devoted the entire space to accounts of holiday festivities and a picture of three small girls kneeling in church services—"confident of showers of blessings, fearing no showers of bombs."

Although thanks for peace and freedom were the keynotes of the day, they came from a nation looking to its defenses as the pilgrims looked to their ready muskets on the first Thanksgiving. A great preparedness program was going forward regardless of the holiday. Planes and tanks moved along on factory assembly lines; ships of a formidable fleet observed the day at sea, and citizen soldiers feasted on turkey in new army mess halls still redolent of fresh saved lumber.

NAZI BOMBERS RAID IN SWARMS

Attacks Result In Deaths In Midlands Area; Homes Demolished.

the raid was the fiercest ever made on that area.

The government said bombs also fell in the London area, at one point in southern England, in the northwest and in south Wales.

Police of an important industrial town in the Midlands said last night that a day of digging through ruins left by the nine-hour raid the previous night so far disclosed less than 20 known dead.

(British censorship forbade identification of this town, but the German high command said the raid had been concentrated on Birmingham.)

British Harbors Hit, Germans Say

BERLIN—(P)—The German air force made a nightlong "large scale attack on the broadest front" against British cities and harbors, informed sources said today.

They declared an "enormous" number of planes participated and noted specifically that the attacks were not aimed at just one objective but at a whole number of areas, including Bristol, Liverpool, London, Birmingham and harbors along the south coast.

Girls Like Fire Wagons, Too

Girls may not serve as fire laddies, but they like to ride the fire wagons, and one of them has taken over the "City Fire department" truck in the picture at the top. It is equipped with headlights, a bell and ladders. Coasting sleds always attract boys—and frequently girls—and in the bottom picture are shown several of the newest models.

Both pictures were taken in toylands in Mansfield stores which are "bigger and better" than ever this year.

WEATHER SAGE LONG FAITHFUL

Wisconsin Neighbors Really Listen to Aged Man Who Tells About 'Old Days.'

(By United Press)

PINE RIVER, Wis.—When George Carpenter, 82, recalls "the big winter of '33" or some similar weather phenomenon, the respect with which his neighbors listen is due not only to his age.

They are aware that Carpenter's remarks are not merely those of an old man who likes to imagine that even the weather in the "old days" was more remarkable than the modern product.

For 48 years Carpenter has served the Federal government as a volunteer meteorologist. In 1892—during the administration of President Benjamin Harrison—the department of agriculture sent him a thermometer, rain gauge and other instruments. Since then, Carpenter has used them daily to record weather conditions at his 40-acre farm near here.

Once a week during these 48 years he has made the two-mile trip to the Pine River postoffice, usually afoot, to mail his reports to the weather bureau at Milwaukee.

"The government wants a fellow to be patriotic," is the shaggy-bearded old man's simple explanation of his long service.

Carpenter has lived alone on his farm for nearly 60 years. Besides meteorology, his hobbies are a collection of Indian relics, flowers and investigation of the therapeutic properties of herbs and barks.

Recently the veteran meteorologist rendered the government an additional volunteer service. He wrote the department of agriculture concerning a spray he had compounded for use against aphids on apple trees or rose bushes.

His formula for longevity? "Work, hard work."

Carpenter says he gets up when he "feels like it." He usually feels like it, however, at about 5 a. m.

Among the 44 prisoners paroled by the commission was Ralph Purdy, former village clerk of Montpelier, serving a one-to-20-year term in the penitentiary for embezzling $40,000 in school and township funds. He entered the pen Dec. 10, 1938, and will be paroled next Nov. 1.

Willing To Work For Community.

A service bureau for Girl Scouts will be the next step in the development of this organization in Mansfield, it was announced yesterday after a meeting of the Council at Scout headquarters.

The service bureau will register Girl Scouts who are willing to work for their community. The work may be any thing that aids a community program, Eleanor Bond, general secretary, explained. Scouts will get credit for doing housework while their mothers are out on fund raising campaigns or welfare work.

Scouts who are willing to give this type of service will register at the service bureau at Girl Scout headquarters. The idea is being carried out all over the country, Miss Bond said, for the purpose of developing a sense of civic responsibility among girls. Mrs. G. B. Smith, chairman of the program committee, will supervise the bureau.

Two new troops of Girl Scouts are being organized at Bushnell school, and one of them will be the first Negro Girl Scout troop in the city, Miss Bond said. Mrs. W. L. Layton, organization chairman, and Miss Bond will go to Bushnell school Monday morning to interview the girls.

SECURITY STEP

Draftees Urged To Have Cards

Selective service registrants were urged today by Social Security authorities to obtain account numbers.

Explaining that questionnaires being sent to prospective draftees asks for a listing of social security account number of the registrant, R. G. Mish, manager of the Mansfield field office of the board, warned men, eligible for selective service to get their cards early.

"I strongly urge any young men who has lost his account number, and who needs it for his selective service questionnaire, to be sure he gets a duplicate of his original social security number, and not a new number, as the latter practice often delays posting of wage credits of those who are covered by the act," Mish said.

He added that duplicate account cards may be obtained by filling in an application which may be secured from any postoffice or through the Mansfield field office in the Richland Trust building.

Richland Rural High Schools Join Defense Work Soon

SURVEY TO BE MADE FOR NEW ENROLLMENTS

County Superintendent Says Defense Training Classes Being Mapped.

A number of Richland county rural high schools may soon join Mansfield Senior high school in offering specialized training under the national defense program.

After conferring with state department of education officials who plan to expand the defense training to include rural schools, Boyd Robinson, county superintendent, said it is probable that classes will be started in sections of the county where facilities are available and there are enough men and youths interested in the courses.

He said a survey will be conducted within a few days to determine how many persons would enroll in the classes. The department of education requires that at least 10 persons attend to make it worth while to conduct classes. Shop and vocational departments in the Lucas, Lexington, Bellville, Butler, Shiloh, Union rural, and Springfield township schools will be available for the classes, Robinson said.

The federal government as sponsor of the defense training program has allocated $666,000 to start the work in Ohio rural schools. Part of the funds probably will be used to expand the National Youth administration program, school officials said.

Classes will be offered in electricity, mechanics, cabinet making and other kindred subjects, it was said.

It is expected that the school vocational equipment and classrooms would be available for defense training only in the late afternoon and at night after regular classes are completed. The special training would not interfere with daily class work. More than 200 persons are enrolled in defense classes at Mansfield Senior high school which TUCSON, Ariz. —(U.P.)—Down in the Mexican quarter of old Tucson, a hangover is something to be cured, not endured.

High spirited Mexicans whose heads feel as big as wash tubs after a week-end of celebration drink menudo, a strange concoction that works wonders on a blue Monday.

For many years menudo has been used by the Mexicans. As early as 4 a. m. on Sundays and Mondays vendors can be heard calling "Menudo! Menudo!" It is a cooked mixture of hominy, tripe, marrow of a cow's leg bone, parsley, peppers and chopped onions.

METALS STUDY TO BE OFFERED FOR DEFENSE

Expert Course Tested In Philadelphia Set Up In Fifty-One Cities.

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND.—Training of experts who will inspect the huge purchases of metals for the national defense program soon will begin without cost to the trainees in 51 American cities.

The American Society for Metals has announced an educational plan designed to provide the qualifications needed by metallurgical inspectors as a contribution to progress of the defense plan.

Special Training Stressed.

"Metallurgical inspection is a technical job, for which many men lack the detailed training and experience," said James P. Gill, president of the society. "The great expansion in purchases for national defense has brought and will bring into the field large groups of inspectors who are intelligent, earnest and hard working, but who lack this training and experience."

The training plan to be followed already has been carried out experimentally in Philadelphia. Results achieved there were the basis for extending it to the 50 other cities where the ASM has chapters.

Nine-Lecture Course.

The Philadelphia course, which will serve as a pattern for others, includes a series of nine lectures given over a three weeks period. The course was directed by Capt. Leslie S. Fletcher of the Frankford Arsenal, and lecturers were outstanding metallurgists and engineers.

Local manufacturers and conditions will determine the subject matter in each of the cities. Lecturers give their services, and there are no obligations to those attending the courses.

Mansfield News-Journal AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1940.

This Day of Thanksgiving

AN UNDERTONE of sadness can be noticed in today's observance of Thanksgiving—a feeling that millions of human beings in other parts of the world, innocent victims of brutal war, have so little for which to be thankful, while Americans have so much, both material and spiritual.

Here there is no shortage of food because of war rationing, nor is the dinner-table conversation guarded through fear of a gastrop. There is also a feeling of assurance—for this Thanksgiving, at least—that no air raid alarm will interrupt the repast and force flight to underground shelter, as in England and possibly other war-torn European countries.

In some homes today there is a vacant chair, because of absence of a member of the family at training camp, but these young men are there because a free people decided that preparedness is essential to preservation of all they hold dear.

It is well to remember, in the peace and quiet of this Thanksgiving day, that privileges also bring obligations and that one of these is to look after our own people who are less fortunate—to help the needy, to create opportunities for young and old, and to promote tolerance and co-operation. Another is to consider the plight of other peoples throughout the world, to give them such help as will augment their strength and courage and hasten the day when the nightmare of force may be ended and the reconstruction of civilization begin again.

Earlier Christmas Shopping

BELIEVE it or not, Christmas buying has already started in Mansfield stores and a look at the calendar will jar you into realization that Christmas is less than five weeks away.

So many other things have served to distract attention during recent weeks that Christmas has been creeping up almost unawares—as it sometimes does with adults, but never with children.

And, as if anticipating more early buying than usual, merchandise displays in Mansfield stores are showing a distinct trend toward suitable gifts, with the suggestion emphasized by colorful green and red wreaths already ornamenting street lights.

There will be last-minute shopping this year—as always—and some of it may be unavoidable, but those thousands who can anticipate gift needs well in advance will find it a great advantage to shop early so as to have wider selection and less hurried service in the stores.

By now your gift list should be tentatively complete and leisurely shopping will be enjoyed while the rush of the last few days before Christmas makes gift-buying quite a chore.

So, take a look through the stores this week—you'll find the experience interesting and you may find "the very thing you were looking for" as a gift to some member of the family or a friend.

Danger In Big-City Domination

EXTENT to which one county—Cuyahoga—contributed to the Roosevelt majority of 146,366 in Ohio is revealed by the official returns just issued from the office of the secretary of state.

While Ohio's other 87 counties were so evenly divided as to favor Roosevelt over Willkie by only 8,318, Cuyahoga county's majority for President Roosevelt was 138,048.

Entirely aside from the implications of this top-heavy New Deal endorsement in Cleveland and its environs, such a situation presents a serious problem for residents of smaller cities, towns and rural communities, the interests of which are endangered by one or two big cities being in position to control state policies in accord with selfish interests rather than considering the welfare of the state as a whole.

It will be recalled that Cleveland has been the most inept big city in the state in handling its own relief problems and has made the most urgent demands on state and federal funds to carry it along.

Without intention to indicate any line of cleavage between the interests of large and small cities, or between urban and rural residents, it does appear that legislation and operation of state government might hereafter be better devoted to considering the welfare of the state as a whole, rather than being too strongly influenced in behalf of a few metropolitan centers.

Defense Work for 'Objectors'

WHILE "conscientious objectors" make quite a problem for the war department, the ones who are sincere in their beliefs probably deserve more consideration than they ordinarily receive and some of them prove that they have physical courage, as well as the moral courage required to maintain their unpopular position.

It is found that Quakers, Mennonites, Adventists and other groups opposed to war on conscientious grounds are usually quite willing to take hazardous non-fighting jobs in which they run as much risk as the regular soldiers. Trenching and supply jobs at the front, for example, and building fortifications where they are right in the line of attack.

More to their liking, and no less dangerous, is first-aid work on the field of battle. The Seventh Day Adventists are organizing a medical corps of cadets for such service.

Even "Jehovah's Witnesses" say the military officials might be available if it were not for their stubborn refusal to salute the flag. That would be awkward in an army.

Clothing for England

AS AMERICAN prosperity mounts and shows itself in the purchase of consumers' goods, it is some small comfort to know that the old overcoat need not be worn again. Its age was the symbol of depression.

It can now be cleaned, mended and sent to British War Relief, to keep warm some Briton whose own clothing is underneath a pile of bricks which it will take a year or two to clear.

They may not be beautiful, those old garments, but they still have warmth.

Hitler's estimate of himself: "I am the hardest man the German people have had for many a decade"—and while some regard him as hard-boiled others consider him as merely half-baked.

Politics isn't dirty—it merely reflects the dirtiness of some of the men who play it.

Greater Aid to Britain Real Test

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Everything now depends on the very point that Wendell Willkie tried so hard to put over during the campaign—production. Particularly, of course, production of planes, munitions, ships and other war supplies for Britain.

President Roosevelt is being told by several of his advisers that his place in history will depend very largely on what happens to Britain in the remainder of the war.

If Britain goes down, he has been told, there will always be historians who will blame American's failure to supply Britain with the necessities of war. If she survives, America will be given the credit for having saved her by furnishing those necessities.

CONSIDER the problem before an impartial historian one hundred years hence. Roosevelt is being told, if Britain survives because of American aid, Roosevelt will be given the credit for having supplied it. The record will show that he forced the repeal of the arms embargo. It will show the administration's attitude about helping Britain.

No historian with that before him is going to concern himself very much with the yellowed newspaper files showing that a candidate named Wendell Willkie attacked Roosevelt for failure to function efficiently in supplying Britain.

But if Britain goes down, the president is also being told, the same historians a century hence will go very carefully into the criticism of Roosevelt on this point of efficiency. Much weight will then be attached to them. And there is the strong possibility that the historians will decide the criticisms were well founded. In fact, it is more than a possibility, it is almost a certainty, the advisors holding this view insist.

This advice is not being given the president with a view to overcoming any reluctance on his part to help Britain. There is no doubt whatever about the president's desire to do that.

Nevertheless there are various theories about what could be done to increase production of the things Britain so vitally needs. Some of these ways are very distasteful to important figures in the administration. Some of them are, to put it mildly, distasteful to the president himself.

THERE are people in the administration on the other extreme, who would like to abolish the National Defense commission.

These include people with widely varying reasons for wanting to get rid of it.

Some of the more radical represent the occasional outbursts from individuals in the commission which seem to curb freedom for labor to fight for improvements.

Others disagree with this criticism, but would like to see the whole process of procurement revert to the war and navy departments. These departments do the buying for our own national defense now, of course, but there are those who would like to see the advisory function of the Defense commission eliminated.

There is also the question of more power for the Defense commission, whether it should have a chairman who could function without running to the president every whistful. On this point the president has given no sign of yielding his present tight control.

These include people with widely varying reasons for wanting to get rid of it.

New Dealers May Replace WPA With Defense Works Program

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The plan still is in the discussion stage, but top-rung New Deal economists are seriously proposing that the WPA be abolished and replaced with a large-scale public works program for national defense. . . . The army is preparing for any eventually no matter where it happens. It has quietly purchased over 7,100,000 yards of mosquito netting. Areas chiefly plagued by mosquitos are Alaska, Newfoundland, Greenland and Latin America. . . .

Only decoration on the walls of the inner sanctum of brain trusters Tommy Corcoran is a group of six pictures of the late great Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes. Corcoran was his secretary for several years.

Senator Charles McNary is one of the nattiest dressers in congress, also the best bean baker. The Oregonian loves to bake beans over an open fire, using bacon, molasses, sherry and eleven hours of simmering. . . .

One congressional defeat Democratic leaders are not regretting is that of Representative Elmer J. Ryan, Minnesota Roosevelt-hater, who created an anti-term scene at the Chicago convention. A former law partner of Governor Stassen, intimate Willkie adviser, Ryan never mentioned the president during the campaign but did confer with Willkie. . . .

ASK SHOWDOWN ON CIO POLICY TOWARD REDS

Anti-Communist Groups Press For Convention Vote To Determine Stand.

and also a proposal to put into CIO's constitution an amendment which would make members of any of the three isms ineligible to hold paid jobs in CIO offices.

The Communist issue has been described by well-informed labor men as one of the problems involved in the consideration of Philip Murray as Lewis' successor in the CIO presidency.

Convention approval of a policy against foreign isms, it was reported, would go far to clear the way for Murray to accept a convention call to the presidency.

As the session neared the business of electing officers, probably on Friday, it was said that Murray had not wavered from his decision that he did not want the CIO presidency.

Some of the large unions have been pressing him to agree to accept the post, and expressing the opinion that if he does not, there will be a scramble for the office.

Hillman, a CIO vice president, and a leading figure in the drive to put Murray in the presidency tossed the issue of foreign isms into the convention yesterday. He described as "a menace to the labor movement" in this country elements which received their orders from "Rome, Berlin or Moscow."

Hillman declared that the "young membership" of labor must be warned not to be misled by the "fine speeches" of the elements he was attacking.

Lewis, who has declared in the past that he had no sympathy for Communists, labelled as a "lie" in one of his convention speeches this week any charges that CIO policy was inspired or directed by adherents of Communism, Nazism or Fascism.

Federation Hits At Racketeering

(By Associated Press) NEW ORLEANS — Success—in some form—for a measure that would drive racketeers out of its labor unions was forecast today by a key man in the American Federation of Labor.

But while the rest of the AFL convention delegates observed Thanksgiving day, representatives of the International Ladies' Garment workers which has 100,000 members in the New York area, met to consider demands for a wage hike and the possibility of a strike.

David Dubinsky, one of the authors of the anti-racketeering measure and president of the garment workers, said:

"Our ILGW general executive board, which meets every three months, was called into session today to work out a new contract for the one expiring Feb. 1.

"We'll want to preserve our present 35-hour week and may ask for higher wages. Because of these and other demands we will also consider the possibility of a strike."

"I don't see how the convention can fail to act favorably on the anti-racketeering resolution," said an official who is a member of the AFL executive council and the resolutions committee.

The executive council in its annual report condemned gangsterism within unions but acknowledged that the general body of the AFL lacked constitutional authority to deal with the problem as it arose in individual unions.

The resolution, introduced by Dubinsky and other members of his ILGW, called upon the convention to vote the AFL constitutional authority to smash racketeering within a union.

"In view of the executive council report," the resolutions committee member said, "and in view of the resolution I believe the convention will take favorable action."

"I do not know at this time, though, what form the resolution will have when it is presented on the convention floor."

The resolutions committee is expected to begin making its report Monday.

Dubinsky philosophical about the future of his measure, said the AFL would adopt it "if not this year, then next year, or two years from now. But it will be adopted. The AFL is always a couple of years slow. It will do it, though."

Dubinsky, one of the founders of the Congress of Industrial Organizations who dropped that body to return to the AFL, said if his resolution failed he would simply accept its fate.

Student Gets Permission to Change 'Embarrassing' Name.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. — A University of Chattanooga student has received court approval to drop "Adolph" as his first name because it had become "a source of inconvenience, embarrassment and humiliation" through association with "Nazi Germany and Adolf Hitler."

The student, Adolph Gorman, was allowed yesterday to change his name to Robert. He retained Adolph as a middle name, "in respect for his father."

getting into the swing of army life," the Mansfielder wrote. "All are taking on weight, going to bed early, getting up early. The meals are exceptionally good and the morale of the men is high. Every man who serves his year of training here will be much more physically fit than when he came to camp."

Last Sunday the battery boys in the communications tent had a slight misfortune. Reveille sounded at 6:30 a. m. and either the boys didn't hear it or preferred their bed to church, for no one got up. Net result: Latrine and kitchen police this week is being done by the boys of that tent.

Commanding officer of Battery D is Capt. William E. Kish, Columbus, who replaced Capt. Robert J. Nichols of Mansfield. Soon after the battery arrived in camp Nichols was transferred to battalion headquarters staff. Nichols had been with the battery for 17 years. Kish is a young Columbus businessman who enlisted in the National Guard at 17 and now at 29 is captain. The battery still rates as one of the best outfits in the regiment.

The 134th F. A. of which the battery is a part, will bivouac for a while at Biloxi, Miss., old and historical town of the deep South which draws thousands of tourists every year. The boys will be permitted time off to do some sight seeing.

The day's schedule at camp ordinarily runs like this: First call at 5:15 a. m., reveille at 5:30. Then the area is policed and all cigarettes, matches and waste paper is gathered up and burned; 6 a. m. breakfast and then cleaning up quarters and making up bunks; 7 to 7:30 exercise and short foot drills; 7:30 to 11:30, instructions. Then dismissed until noon when the mail is distributed. From 1 to 4:30 is drill practice; retreat at 5:30 and evening mess at 6 p. m. After that the men are free to stroll about camp, study or go to a picture show in camp. By 8:30 or at the latest 9:30 the men are "plenty ready for bed."

Here are some of the Battery D news jottings from Camp Shelby as compiled by Sgt. Rowan:

Five non-commissioned officers of the battery are attending specialist schools to act as instructors during the coming months. They are Sgts. Schoenfeld, Louis Rein, McQueen and Rowan, and Cpls. McAninch and Champion....

Promoted to corporals were Robert Clummon James Dickson and Paul Rein with Joe Deng and Paul Stevens as acting corporals. Seven who made the rank of first class private were Robert J. Pugh, Lorn Smith, George Mortimer, Arthur Burdine, Lester Prosser, John Ring and Nick Koelner....

soil, successful progress was reported without details. The forceful Greek counter-offensive in the center, along the only road in that region, was declared to have followed the virtual cessation of Italian air bombardment which previously had slowed the Greek advance.

The Greek command said the Italians bombed two cities in Epirus and Thessaly yesterday, killing a few persons, but that was all. The Greeks' own aviation was asserted to have bombed and strafed the retreating Italians and to have attacked the airbase at Argyrocastro, deep in southern Albania.

British Royal Air Forces which are aiding the Greeks reported that they alone had shot down 11 Italian planes in 24 hours.

(It was reported in the Yugoslav border town of Bitolj that British planes also bombed Koritza while Greek field guns maintained a terrific fire into the town and that the Italians appeared ready to abandon the place.)

The Greek spokesman also said the Italians were having difficulties with the conquered Albanians. A battalion of Albanians in the Italian central forces revolted and had to be disarmed, he asserted.

NEW YORK — (AP) — The Bronx zoo has traded a toucan, an African bird of the cuckoo family, for a kea, a rare New Zealand bird which has a penchant for killing sheep by breaking their backs.

$37,982 IN BUC CHECKS PAID IN 3 COUNTIES

Payments Boost to $334,285 Amount Received in District Since First of Year.

Unemployment benefits totaling $37,982 were distributed to jobless workers in the three-county Mansfield district of the state Bureau of Unemployment Compensation during October. C. W. Handley, district manager, reported today.

Handley said the amount represented a 3 per cent decrease from the previous month's benefits and boosted to $334,285 the amount distributed to unemployed in Richland, Ashland and Morrow counties so far this year.

A total of 3,578 checks were mailed to the workers, the average weekly payment for total unemployment amounting to $11.42 and the average weekly payment for partial unemployment totaled $7.01.

Both were above the state average of $10.39 for total unemployment and $4.91 for partial unemployment.

Handley reported that although 250 new claims for benefits were received during the month, representing an increase of 16 per cent over September, placements made by the district office offset the rise. The employment division found jobs for 350 workers during the 30-day period, an increase of 15.4 per cent over the previous month.

The office received 377 new applications for employment during October to boost the number of unemployed listed in the active file to 3,000.

This Little Pig Went Back Home After Auto Ride

SPOKANE, Wash. —(AP)—It took the hired man, a housekeeper, a salesman and a deputy sheriff to get a stolen pig returned to its owner, a farmer.

According to the sheriff's office, the hired man saw two men take the farmer's little pig. He called a neighbor's housekeeper. The housekeeper told a salesman, who took a shotgun and went outside to the road.

He met the two men driving a car and found the little pig between them.

The pig was taken home, the two men to jail, where they told deputies they had been drinking. They were released on their own recognizance.

With All The Hard Work, Army Has Plans For Play

(This is the third of a series describing what the draftees will find in the army.)

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
(AP Feature Service Writer)

WASHINGTON—The draft army is going to have three million dollars worth of fun during its year of training. Close to that much has been allotted to the new morale division.

No. 1 drawing card will be regular Hollywood movies at least three nights a week. There'll be big theater buildings in northern camps, tent "big tops" in the southern centers.

Second in importance will be athletics—the kind everybody gets in, and the spectator kind, too, stressing boxing matches. Next comes a heavy accent on music—bands and concerts at the slightest excuse, plus camp songfests led by vigorous song leaders. PLUS all the Hollywood big-name singers.

There'll be amateur dramatics, some army publications, camp libraries, camera clubs, art materials and displays—all under the army's own supervision.

The day-in-and-day-out hangout will be the service clubs, presided over by hostesses, with newspapers, books, checkers, dominos, and pianos as secondary attractions. One assistant hostess will run the cafeteria, another will manage camp social events, obtain approved young ladies (not hot numbers nor wall flowers) for social events and occasional dances.

No Jody Lamarrs need apply for hostess. Nor wet blankets, either. Nor elderly society ladies with purple dyed hair. For hostesses, the army wants character first, not too much youth, approval by all strata of society in nearby cities and towns.

The men can go to nearby towns. There'll be a bus service especially for church visits. Military police will be expected to co-operate with civil authorities and smash up camp following dives faster than they can mushroom.

And Mom, P. S., If you think your son ought to be going to his church, write the camp chaplain of your denomination, or a pastor

Don't get the idea, mothers, that letter writing must be done on the cold ground. There'll be tables and chairs. Writing will be encouraged.

in a town near camp. They'll work right under Sonny's nose for letters home. And he'll be reminded to write.

BRITAIN GIVES U. S. KEY TO CARIBBEAN SEA

Lease of Bases Marks End of Slow Withdrawal By Naval Forces.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Great Britain, handing to the United States the key to her naval bases in the Caribbean, is pursuing a policy of withdrawal from those waters that was begun 35 years ago.

It entered the Caribbean in the age of American conquest, when the conquistadores strode across mountains and enslaved Indians. It fought for the islands and clung to them through the age of pirates fortified them and used them as bases for the British fleet.

In those earlier days, Britain had other ideas about the American continent. When the United States, racked with growing pains, was climbing slowly up among the top shelf nations, Britain kept strong bases in the Caribbean and was always within easy pouncing distance.

St. Lucia for a long time was maintained as the British naval base from which to command the West Indies. During those lush days, many a Britisher returned to the tight little isle from the Indies fat of stomach and purse.

But a close community of interest has lain between the Caribbean islands and the United States. During the revolution, and afterward, when the rebellious colonies were cut off from trade with England, a steady and remunerative smuggling trade flourished with the islands.

When the United States stretched out to fill the area between Canada and Mexico, from coast to coast, England watched warily. After half a century or so it concluded the United States might be a going concern and interest in the Caribbean dwindled.

That attitude was marked by the turn of this century. In 1904, a British statesman said in the house of commons "the whole (British) naval situation has undergone a complete revolution—that revolution is the birth of the United States navy."

Soon afterward, British naval operations in the Caribbean were trimmed down, those of the United States began to expand.

St. Lucia was put on an inactive peace basis in 1905. It is now spoken of as a site for a United States base under the new leasing arrangement.

The British base at Port Royal, Jamaica, went to a peace status long ago. Now the United States will get a base on the southern coast of Jamaica. That might mean Port Royal.

In 1909, Britain discontinued its North American and West Indies squadron. A small force under that name was reestablished after the World war, but even before the clamor of European troubles called British attention back to Europe, that force had been trimmed to five cruisers, two sloops and a depot ship. They were based at Bermuda. Here the United States now gets a new base.

The other new sites, added to those at St. Lucia, in Jamaica and Bermuda, plus those the United States already has, gives this nation a naval fence around the northern entrances to the Panama canal.

Florida Makes Survey To Find National Defense Assets.

TAMPA, Fla., (U.P.)—A committee appointed by Gov. Fred P. Cone at the request of the National Defense Advisory committee has completed the first draft of a report showing what Florida can contribute to fill the nation's military needs.

The final report will be sent to the defense committee, which is seeking to determine what war needs each state can supply.

The preliminary report showed Florida has an unlimited supply of phosphate for use in the manufacture of incendiary bombs, paper factories manufacturing cellulose for use in nitroglycerin in explosives, a limited production of tung oil for waterproofing munitions and airplane wings, shipbuilding plants capable of producing destroyers and torpedo boats, and large supplies of naval stores—turpentine and pitch.

FARMERS URGED TO GROW SEED

MONTGOMERY, Ala., (U.P.)—The Alabama state extension service reports while present seed supplies are adequate, American farmers will have to produce more seed next year to meet shortages caused by the European war. The service pointed out for many years much seed has been imported from Great Britain, France, Germany, Denmark and Holland. The imports have all been curtailed and in some instances stopped by the war. Seeds chiefly effected, the service said, are such soil-conserving crops as crimson clover, white clover, rye-grass, orchard-grass, and hairy vetch, and spinach, cauliflower, cabbage, radishes and carrots.

Patrol Bombers Use New Bases In Ocean Defense

WASHINGTON—The navy is buttressing defense in the Atlantic with warplanes which can fly half way to Europe in search of an enemy surface fleet. They are designed for long-distance patrol work, to flash back a wireless alarm of any hostile threat.

They are designed also for heavy bombing to make direct attacks on enemy ship concentrations, supply bases and aviation depots.

The airplanes are rolling off the assembly line in big volume and their manufacture begins to throw some light on the defense strategy of the navy which faces the problem of hemisphere defense in the absence, for the present, of a two-ocean fleet.

Bases acquired from the British under the administration's destroyer trade and probably other bases which will become available in Latin America, in addition to ports under the American flag, will be used by the new fleet of bombers.

LEED'S DRUG STORE OPENS IN MANSFIELD

Modern Establishment Ready To Provide Complete Service In Every Department.

Scheduled to open Friday morning, Leed's drug store at 84 North Main street, will give Mansfield a drug store and pharmacy of the most modern type.

Offering a complete drug and prescription service, Leed's is the first of a chain of drug stores the firm plans to open. Headquarters for the organization will be in Mansfield with N. Bachman as president.

Bachman formerly was a buyer for large cut-rate drug store chains throughout the nation and has had wide experience in the drug business. Secretary of the firm is B. Brizman, former general manager and buyer for the United Perfumery chain at Trenton, N. J.

The new Leed's store is in the rooms formerly occupied by the Ash Hat company on the east side of Main street near Fourth street. During recent weeks the rooms have been completely remodeled and designed to offer the best in display space and the utmost in beauty.

Patrons of the store are certain to be impressed by the lighting which will be provided by the last word in fluorescent equipment. There will be a daylight effect in the store all the time with the lighting designed specially for eye comfort.

The best in drug preparations is stocked by Leed's at cut-rate prices. The drug department has such famous brands as Park-Davis, Lilly's, Upjohn, Squibb's, Abbott, Daily Vitamins, and I. V. C. Cosmetics Department.

Women and girls will find their favorite cosmetics and plenty of them in the new store. The stock will include products by Coty, Hudnut, Hammet Hubbard Ayer, Max Factor, Bourjois, and others equally famous.

Smokers will like the tobacco counter too. There they will find a big variety of pipes, cigars, cigarettes and smoking tobacco kept fresh in a humidified showcase.

Opening just in time for the Christmas shopping season, the store has an electrical appliance department from which it will be easy to choose a handy and economical gift to please any member of the family. The department includes heaters, heating pads, curling irons, pressing irons, toasters, and a number of other appliances that come in handy in the modern home.

Candy Department. Another department that's going to be popular through the Christmas season is the candy counter. Bulk and package candies will be sold as well as the popular nickel bar. Employees will pay special attention to the freshness of the candy and the stock will be replenished often.

An experienced pharmacist will give prompt and accurate service in the prescription department. Every prescription filled will be checked carefully to eliminate the possibility of error. In the store's modern laboratory, chemicals and ingredients will be kept fresh and active.

Under the direction of Mr. Bachman, the purchasing department will keep shelves filled with the best in modern drugs, cosmetics, smoking supplies, and equipment for the home. Buyers will study the reactions of the public and attempt to keep the stock in step with varying tastes.

Arrangement of the store presents the stock in the most attractive manner possible. On one side there will be the familiar combination service and display counter, while on the other there will be a new idea in terraced shelves and exhibits.

UNLUCKY SHOE MONTGOMERY, Ala. — (U.P.) — Allie Sanson, city employee, moved into a new home a year ago. To be sure he would have luck there, he tacked a horse shoe over the door, then nailed a mule shoe under it.

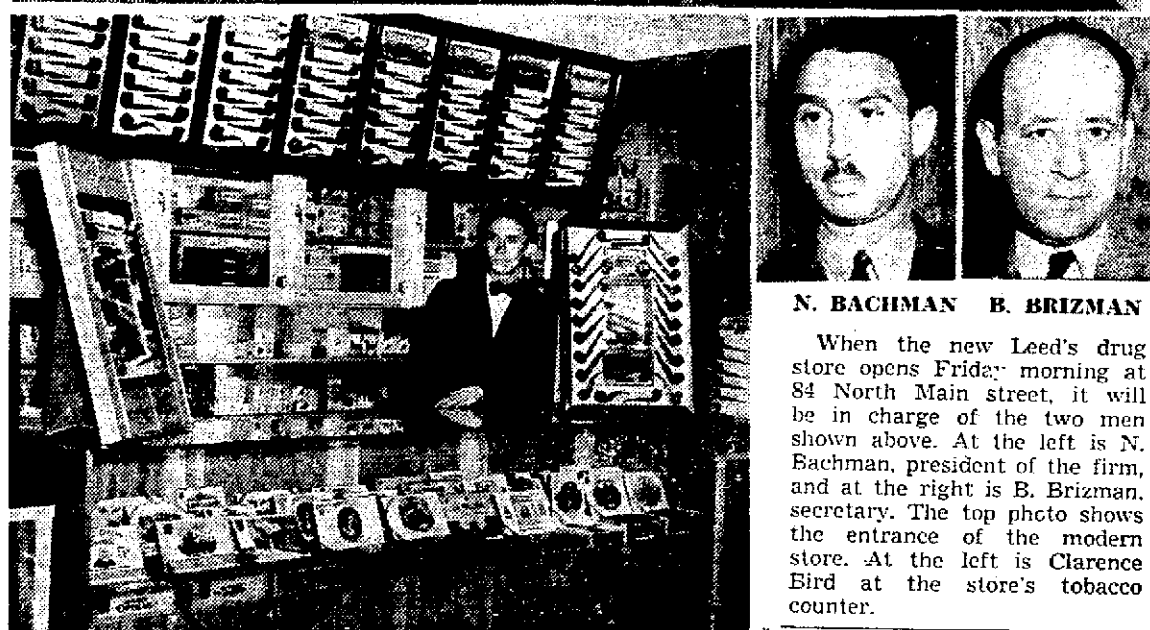

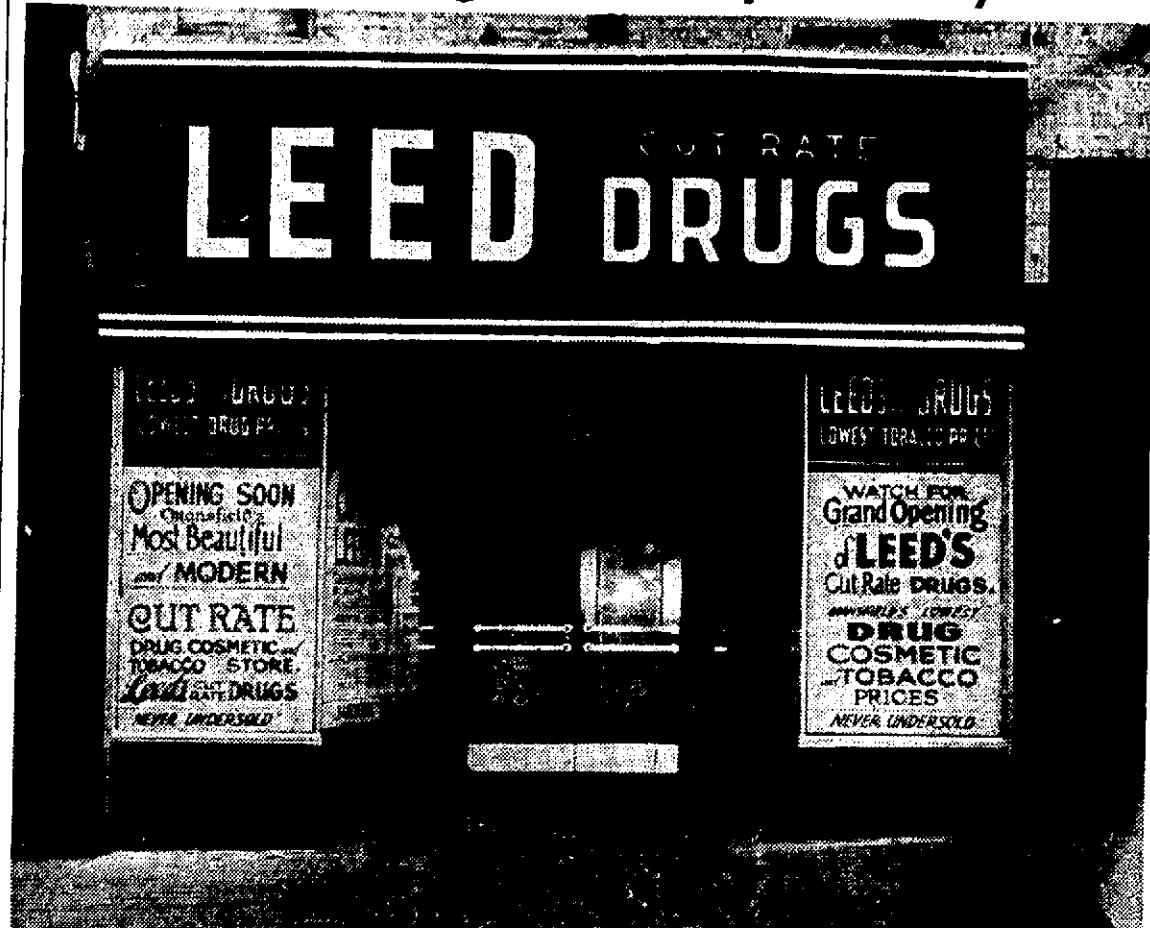

Since then he has lost three pocketbooks containing a total of $90.70 and has been assaulted and severely beaten by a Negro.

FRANCE ORDERS BOYS TO FARMS

Those From 14 to 17 Must Go To Work In Fields; State To Help Pay Costs.

(By United Press) VICHY—The return to the land will begin with the young. A new law provides that city boys of between 14 and 17 must go to work in the fields. The state will cover six months of this apprenticeship by paying the farmer 900 francs to teach them farming. After the first six months the farmer will be obliged to pay his apprentice.

France's desperate need of farmers has compelled the government to institute a law obliging city boys of between 14 and 17 years to become apprentices on farms to learn farming. Each farmer will take a certain number of boys as apprentices and teach them his trade. All boys who are taken as apprentices will have to work at least one year with the farmer, who after the first six months will pay him according to his ability at a rate yet to be fixed. The farmer will have to insure a fatherly way of existence of the boys in his care.

Children in big families will receive preference. The youths will be formed in agricultural squads. They will live in camps and by

BATTLE SMOKE

WASHINGTON — (U.S.) — The Bureau of Mines is experimenting with a chimney device which vibrates an aluminum cylinder, producing high frequency sound that, in turn, creates high frequency waves. These are directed at the smoke, causing particles in the smoke to coagulate into hunks of soot, which fall out of the air stream by gravity.

DO'S AND DONT'S FOR JOB SEEKER

Commission In Pennsylvania Lists Hints to Help Get Employment.

(By United Press) HARRISBURG, Pa. — Pennsylvania's job mobilization campaign committee, a group headed by Gov. Arthur H. James to create new jobs and stimulate industry has drawn up a list of "do's and don'ts" to help commonwealth residents obtain jobs. Pointing out that "first appearances" decide the job-seeker's fate, the committee advises all applicants to look their best. Here's how:

"Nails clean and trimmed. Teeth sparkling and hair groomed. Face hands and body clean and wholesome. Freshly shaved. Shoes shined and clothes pressed."

For women there are these special tips:

"Don't use excessive make-up or lipstick, make sure your nose are not wrinkled, watch that your slip doesn't show, don't wear brilliant nail polish, and don't wear fancy shoes."

The commonwealth adds: "Do not storm into the president's office—your approach should be straight-forward and courteous. Remain outside a private office until you have been asked to enter. Remain standing until you have been asked to be seated. Retain your poise, do not slouch and be on the alert.

"Don't mumble your name. Don't fidget. Don't chew gum, smoke or use strong perfume. Don't play with your tie or ring. Don't lay your hat on the employer's desk. Don't talk too much. Don't try too hard to make an impression."

NEW TAX RECORD SET. OLYMPIA, Wash. — (U.P.) — Revenue from Washington's sales and business taxes set a new all-time record in the fiscal year ended April 30, the state tax commission reported. Income was $29,935,773, compared to $23,294,561 the previous year. Heavier levies and improved business conditions accounted for the increase, the commission said.

SANTA'S SHOPS FILL TOYLANDS IN MANSFIELD

Shelves Lined With Unique Gadgets That Make Eyes of Children Pop.

You can't realize Christmas is just around the corner? Take a trip through the many toy departments of Mansfield stores and you'll be convinced. The toylands open officially tomorrow and shelves are lined with dolls, stuffed animals, mechanical toys, electrical toys, games, books and an array of small furniture that will make the eyes of small girls pop.

You would think that the war would have been a major factor in determining the trend in this year's toys, but it isn't. There are, to be sure, military toys and suits, but these do not predominate in toy displays.

There are the usual sets of wooden soldiers and there are miniature "flying fortresses" and one store is displaying a submarine which will navigate, dive and come up—if you have a pool big enough. And there are play suits which are replicas of those worn by officers in the infantry and the flying corps. Among the toy trucks are a Red Cross ambulance and a khaki-colored army field truck.

Dolls have grown a bit older this year—as why shouldn't they?—and those pretty babies who could only say a very mechanical "Ma—ma" last year, can now say "Pa—pa," too. Turn 'em once and they give a bleating hungry cry for the maternal parent; turn 'em the other way and they cry for daddy.

They've learned to use their eyes, too. Heretofore only the sleeping dolls could close and open their eyes, but this year the baby can turn her eyes to the right and left with startlingly natural effects.

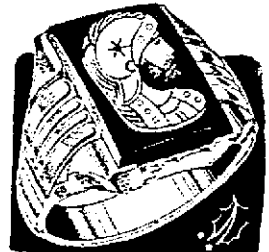

Cutest of the dolls is Sleep Susie, who has practical value as well as charm. Susie never wakes up and she has a soft, pliable little body of pink velour. There is a zipper down her back which can be opened every morning and small pajamas tucked into her "anards." Anyway you happen to toss her, she lands in a natural sleeping position. Six dozen Sleepy Susies have been ordered by one store and more than half of them have already been sold.

There are "cuddle" dolls with pliable bodies, and dolls from all countries, including little "Miss America"; and there are bridesmaids in ornate dresses and bouquets; sailor boys, a Sonja Henie with her skating on and a white satin skating suit; a lady of the Gay Nineties with a high pompadour of real hair and a shirtwaist dress with mutton-leg sleeves; and one store shows a Pat-a-Pat doll which can patty-cake.

There is a greater showing of electrically driven toys than ever before and any normal boy can find a thousand and one things to interest him. Erector sets have small motors which will run anything from a sewing machine to a toy ferris wheel.

Christmas Toys In Mansfield Stores

What's wrong with the picture at the top? You've guessed it—there aren't any fathers in it. It just isn't natural to see a grand electric train and not a father in sight. These Mansfield boys are looking over the improvements in electric trains at one of the Christmas toy shops, and hoping that their daddies will see the trains too, and buy them for Christmas so they can all play with them. In the picture below a small miss reaches a chubby hand toward one of the dolls in the display. Dolls this year are more elegant, more life like than ever and every toyland has a fascinating array of them.

TOWN MOVED

GREENVILLE, Mo. — (U.P.) — Greenville's residents have been ordered by the government to vacate by Dec. 31. The town site will be buried by waters backing up behind Wappapello Dam, which is nearing completion. The new town is being built in the hills north of the present site.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Dutton of Warren, O.

Miss Ann Sessions, made a talk on "The Youth of America" in a broadcast from a New Orleans station more than a year ago, while she was a newspaper-woman in Hammond.

Dutton, listening at his Ohio home, was impressed with her talk, and wrote Miss Sessions a letter of commendation. She answered, thanking him. The correspondence kept up and grew into a mail romance.

Recently the couple was married at Brookhaven, Miss. They will live in Warren.

Wedding Follows Introduction By Radio Broadcast

HAMMOND, La. — (U.P.) — A radio broadcast began the romance of graph keys so that boys can talk from one room to another; there are twin telephone sets with wires which can be installed in different parts of the house and even out in the grounds with excellent communication facilities.

One store manager is so intrigued by a small steam power motor and wheel that he insists on showing it personally to customers. There is an electrically operated locomotive at the same store which is a perfect replica of the real McCoy, while electric train sets have many new features this year.

Newest things in wagons and toy autos this year are a farm wagon and a little station wagon which is a smoothie for any youngster. The farm wagon has sideboards like the old-fashioned vehicles used on the farm.

Furniture for children has never been more elaborate nor more practical. While there is an interesting trend toward the little old red rockers of a generation ago, there are also over-stuffed chairs upholstered in very fine materials which are distinctly for the living room.

One store is showing little maple rockers and cradles with musical attachments which play old music-box melodies as the child rocks. There is a combination child's rocker with doll cradle attached in early American maple, and there are desks which may be had in business-like roll tops or knee-hole style and these range in sizes from very small children to junior high school students.

Chemical sets and hobby-craft sets are now this year. Games and color books are much the same although Gloria Jean has very largely replaced the Shirley Temple theme.

Most toylands are showing educational toys in bright painted wood, which may be had in inexpensive little pieces up to the famous Holgate line.

Add all these together and you have Christmas. This week and next will see the toylands at their best as stocks will start to go down as the holiday draws nearer.

CHIMPANZEES IN DIAPERS USED IN EXPERIMENTS

Tests Are Made To Determine Natural Traits of Behavior.

(By Associated Press)
ORANGE PARK, Fla. — Diapered baby chimpanzees in their new nursery at the Yale Laboratory of Primate Biology here are taking many of the same tests a psychologist would give your child.

Reared in isolation from their own parents, the infant apes are expected to show what traits of behavior are natural and how quickly they pick up essential knowledge for themselves.

Results of the experiment may become bases for further study by psychologists of human child behavior and learning.

Little Alf, JoJo, Jenny, Ken and several others—none much more than a year old—are cared for by humans with the idea of making them healthier and inhibiting them less than would Mama Chimp.

They eat regular baby food—fed with spoon and bottle by a nurse. They wear diapers. They play freely in their individual cages.

They are tested to see when they can determine colors or perform such tasks as picking up and throwing balls or figure out that a square block will fit better into a square hole than a round one.

They are allowed to learn about the world for themselves with a minimum of training.

Records of their physical, mental and behavior progress will be compared with those of children.

Dr. Henry W. Nissen, in charge of the Orange Park Laboratory, believes the chimpanzee in mentality and physique is the animal kingdom's closest approach to mankind.

Many of the experiments carried on here could not be undertaken with man to learn why we do the things we do, so the Yale university research experts have gone to the next best source for hints.

Results of tests of baby apes reared away from their parents will be compared with tests given to young chimps brought up by their own mothers and with other young apes.

Peter, for example, went through two courses of tests before he was allowed to rejoin other apes in the colony. The scientists found "the impression showed a lower level of emotionality" than young chimpanzees who had been reared together.

Dr. Robert M. Yerkes, who directs all the work here and in New Haven, believes that if there were more imagination among chimpanzees they "might be expected to develop a spoken language."

"As to memory, the chimpanzee is efficiently equipped, for it remembers well and long anything which vividly impresses it," he said.

Experiments have shown that the chimpanzees "depend for inter-communication primarily on bodily postures, gestures and sounds."

Dr. Yerkes sums up the experiments with the explanation that "we are seeking by several routes to cross the gulf between man and anthropoid ape, that we may know ourselves and them in true genetic relation and perspective."

You would never know the old Silver Slipper now! It has been changed from a high spot for adults to a gala spot for children as Grants Toy Annex. The largest and best displayed assortment of toys Mansfield has ever seen is now assembled here. One of the special attractions is a talking Pandora. A preview and formal opening will be held Friday evening from 7 to 9 p. m. It's right next to the Grant Store entrance on Walnut street. Plan now to attend.—Adv.

TRUCK DRIVERS GIVEN SUPPORT BY AUTO CLUB

Safety Habits of Transport Men Praised By A. A. A. In Statement.

DENVER —(INS)—Although frequently abused by the average motorist, truck drivers have at last found a champion in the Rocky Mountain A. A. A. Automobile club.

The safe driving habits of the trucker should serve as a lesson to the private car owner, was the tenor of a statement released recently by the club.

"The fact that the fatal accident rate for trucks per 10,000 vehicles registered has dropped 29 per cent in the last 12 months," the statement said, "while passenger car rate of accidents has increased 18 per cent, indicates that private car users can take a lesson from the hitherto much criticized truck drivers."

"To come through on time and safely each day with his load is the aim of the trucker. He therefore takes no chances and has developed general principles of good driving. This is shown in his workman-like attitude toward the job."

According to the AAA, trucking companies know that they must get along with the public if they are to continue to use roads for which they pay a high tax rate.

Truckers have to maintain the good will of the public, and are under severe discipline. Truck associations are constantly impressing upon drivers that they must do everything possible to maintain the good will of other highway users.

Although a truck sometimes interferes with traffic speed, the AAA pointed out, every driver can learn much by watching the way an experienced trucker pilots his vehicle.

DR. CHARLES SMITH

DR. SMITH TO SPEAK HERE

Chicagoan To Give Address At Annual Meeting of Manufacturers.

Dr. Charles Copeland Smith, of Chicago, will return to Mansfield Dec. 16 to address the annual meeting of the Manufacturers division of the Chamber of Commerce at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Ranked as one of Chicago's outstanding speakers, Dr. Smith was the principal speaker at the Ohio Master Plumbers association convention here a year ago.

Born and raised in England, he was graduated from the University of Manchester, with a Ph.D. degree. During the last World War he received the King's medal and the thanks of parliament for establishing and supervising war relief on the Isle of Man.

A citizen of the United States, Dr. Smith came to this country in 1919. He is one of the oldest and best known broadcasters in the mid-west and for many years wrote a daily column for the Chicago Daily News on social subjects.

C. A. Hines is president of the Manufacturers club and Lewis F. Hartman is vice president. The executive committee includes George W. Stephens, S. Glen Vinson, R. M. Lamb, M. W. Manz and C. L. VanDerau.

EASTON, Pa. — (INS) — Robert Suhret and Helen D. Brower of Newark, N. J., are the best customers the Northampton county marriage license bureau has. The couple took out their fifth license recently after failing to use their previous four permits within the 60-day expiration period.

FORECAST GOOD HUNTING.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. — (U.P.) The Missouri Conservation Commission's check on the quail population showed at least as many quail in the state as last year, considered an unusually good season. Quail season opened Nov. 10.

The government says Brazil now has 125,000 miles of roads. Unofficial estimates are that perhaps 20 to 25 per cent can be called good roads. The greatest share of the mileage is in the southern and central-coastal sections.

REICH OFFSETS LACK OF LABOR WITH MACHINES

Hours Also Lengthened With Work Draft For Women; Use War Prisoners.

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON—With a from 1,000,000 to 2,000,000 fewer workers, Germany has maintained peace-time industrial production since outbreak of the war by lengthening hours and mechanizing production methods, reports to official government agencies reveal.

Full statistics are not available but the reports said that an improvement in monthly production was expected, since a large number of war prisoners and civilian laborers, now engaged in harvesting agricultural crops, soon will be available for industrial pursuits.

Approximately 1,000,000 industrial workers were drawn from the oldest and youngest age groups, and several hundred thousand war prisoners were used in agriculture. Despite this there were between 1,000,000 and 2,000,000 fewer industrial workers than the peace time total. The latest peace time figure was 21,840,000 workers and wage earners on June 30, 1939.

Working Hours Longer. This, reports showed, was offset by longer hours and rationalization which included particularly mechanization of many production processes, permitting use of unskilled labor and releasing skilled labor for other purposes.

Production programs have been shifted to harmonize with the present phase of the war, with military operations in the air and on the sea succeeding land operations. The change in the type of warfare enabled dismissal of some but not very large categories of soldiers.

Of greater importance was the dismissal of an unknown number of building workers formerly constructing land fortifications. This permitted resumption on a moderate scale of private construction, particularly of residence, and work was resumed on some buildings in Berlin and other large cities.

Women Put to Work. Conscription of a small number of women workers continued during the summer, these recruits being used mostly in aviation industries.

Building trades were expected to receive the labor of 175,000 war prisoners in the fall to augment the 1,000,000 employed during the summer. This figure was believed to be the maximum the trades could obtain, even with conscription.

French and other prisoners of war were put to work during September on Germany's super-autobahn highway construction, and observers reported that in general war prisoners and workers from occupied territory are a most important factor in war economy.

On June 30, 1939, there were 21,840,000 workers and wage earners in the Reich.

CHAPTER II

The train whistled in the distance and every nerve in the girl's body exulted. So long as she lived she would never forget this thrilling moment before it thundered into the station to take her away.

Mike chuckled. "Well, Glory, don't forget your old friends when you come back to town a star."

"Of course I won't," she replied seriously. "And I'll never forget that you were the first one to give me a word of encouragement."

He had picked up her bags and put them on the train, which stopped only on signal. It was already moving when Mike cried, "But of course your father knows about it?"

His face reflected her surprise as she shook her head.

"No! Good-bye, Mike, good-bye!"

"Glory Stevens, you come back here!" he shouted, but she did not hear him. She had followed the porter into the sleeping car, and was making a pullman reservation, trying to be as calm as possible. But her heart was thudding so wildly she was afraid it would suffocate her.

Outside the window the last lights of the town where she had been born flashed by. "Good-bye, Daddy, darling! Oh please forgive me!" she could picture him racing down to the station, just missing the train. But there was nothing he could do about it.

Glory swallowed hard and kept her eyes on the porter as he made up her berth. In all her life she had never been on a train over-night before. She had never been outside her home state, and here she was on her way to Hollywood! Those dreams she had had ever since she piled her hair on top of her head and paraded back and forth in the privacy of her own room, wearing a nightgown, pretending she was Lady Macbeth, the hours she had spent in the attic studying the old photographs of her mother in beautiful costumes, graceful poses, had finally brought her to this moment. But Glory, trembling with reaction and excitement, had no regrets. She was sorry for Arthur, sorrier still for her father, but nothing, no one, could have persuaded her to go back.

The conductor, who had to speak to her twice to rouse her, smiled to himself. He knew the type. Probably some star-struck kid who thought she would be luckier than thousands of others and land a movie contract. He had seen them start out like this. Full of courage and illusions. He had also brought many of them back hungry and discouraged. And there were plenty of them who didn't return who were probably worse off. It would be tough for a pretty girl like this one. . . . If she belonged to him he would never have let her start out on such a foolish adventure. But, after all, it wasn't his worry. Besides, he might be wrong.

"Los Angeles?" he said as he took her ticket.

"No, Hollywood," she confided. "There's no Hollywood station, miss. You'll have to get off at Glendale or go into Los Angeles."

Glory looked puzzled. She glanced at the conductor to see if he were joking but he seemed serious enough. Almost cross, she thought. And suddenly for no reason, except that she was tired and nervous and more temperamental than she herself realized, she wanted to cry.

Doubt of her own ability to carry off this great adventure settled down over her like a gloomy mist. What was she going to do after she reached her destination? It was all so much more complicated than she had thought it would be just dreaming about it. . . . Running away from home and her own wedding was only the first step. In the morning everything would probably be all right. It was the unfamiliar train with its dim lights and swaying pullman curtains and the blackness of the night pressing with unseen hands against the windows. . . . Arthur would know by now. He would be furious. . . . And her father? . . . What would he do? Would he try to make her come back? Could he? Better stop thinking about it, Glory and go to bed.

In the dressing room a middle-aged woman with hard blue eyes and dyed blond hair was smoking a cigarette. Her voice was husky and drew but somehow strangely stirring as she asked, "Going to the coast?"

Glory lifted the turban from her aching head and ran her fingers through silky curls.

"Yes," she replied, feeling inexperienced and shy. "Hollywood."

"I guessed as much," the older woman said.

"Have you been there?" Glory asked eagerly.

"I live there." She paused. "Yes, I'm in the movies."

Fatigue slipped from the girl's young shoulders as she cried, "Oh, really! Then perhaps you can tell me what to do first. Where to go. I mean, or how to begin? I don't know anything about it, you see except what I've read in the magazines, but I'm sure I can make good if some one will just give me a chance."

Helen Jamison frowned out her cigarette and frowned, not at Glory, but at another girl whose image she saw reflected in that mirror repeating those same words. Twenty years ago—merciful heavens could it have been that long since she had dreamed of becoming Hollywood's most outstanding actress? What a joke that had been! Because after years of waiting and almost starving to death, she was still working part-time only, one degree above the extra ranks. Oh, she had her pride and she spoke of herself as a "character actress" but usually her bit was so unimportant that her face was faded in as a part of the background.

"I don't remember your name," Glory admitted but your face looked familiar to me.

Helen sighed and lit another cigarette.

"No, you wouldn't. And the only reason my face looks familiar is that there are so many others just like it. Look, kid, you've asked for my advice, so I'm going to give it to you. Have your little visit in Hollywood—maybe I can arrange for you to see a studio or two—then go home."

Glory's features stiffened. All her fear and uncertainty faded. "But I can't go back," she said. "Even if I could I won't. You see my mother was an actress years ago in New York. Her stage name was Constance Brent. Maybe you've heard of her?"

Helen shook her head.

"No, I haven't. But even if she were one of the finest it wouldn't mean anything to you in Hollywood."

Moved by a sudden liking for this "babe in the woods" she herself could not understand Helen added, "Take my word for it, my dear, you've no idea of what you'll be up against. Oh, you're pretty enough. Exceptionally so, but there are hundreds of others just as beautiful, and with experience, still waiting for that break you're talking about. And since we're on the subject, how about telling me why you can't go back to your home town? What have you done that makes it so impossible for you to go back?"

Glory, ordinarily reserved, was so grateful for this meeting with somebody from Hollywood, which seemed almost miraculous, that she told her whole story. All about Arthur and her attempt to force herself to marry him and settle down as her father wished. "But when I saw myself in my wedding dress, I knew it was no use. I couldn't go through with it," she said.

In spite of herself, Helen Jamison was interested.

"And what do you plan to do when you get there?" she asked. "Register at Central Casting," Helen answered promptly. "They haven't been registering any one for months."

"How does a girl get into a studio then?" Glory said, pathetically.

"She doesn't. Unless you know somebody who knows somebody else who will give you a chance. Even then it isn't good form to make use of your friends. That's why every one connected with the movies has to be so snooty. There's no end to the advantage every one who gets a whack at you will take."

"But what am I going to do then?" the girl continued. "Because whatever happens, I'm not going back."

"If you're lucky you'll end up by being a waitress wearing a pink or green uniform with a ducky little frilled apron, or maybe work in a candy shop. But there aren't many jobs even like that left."

"Oh, I've plenty of money," Glory asserted. Three hundred dollars seemed like an enormous sum.

"That helps!" the older woman admitted. "See here, don't you know anybody?"

Glory shook her head.

U. S. Gets Delivery on 400-Mile-an-Hour Fighter Plane

NEW MEDIUM BOMBER GIVEN SECRET TESTS

War Department Withholds Details on Results of Demonstration.

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON—Delivery of a 400-mile-per-hour fighter plane to the navy and performance tests of a new medium bomber and a primary training plane for the army marked fresh progress today in the aerial phase of the defense program.

Secretary Knox disclosed at a press conference late yesterday that the navy had just received its first delivery of a new single-seater fighter plane capable of traveling in excess of 400 miles an hour. This ship was delivered by the Vought-Sikorsky company, he said, and several additional ones like it were at the company's plant ready for delivery. Knox called the craft, which is designed to operate from a navy carrier, a "sturdy and tough-looking little plane."

The war department disclosed today that a new medium bomber plane, the B-25, was being tested and inspected by air corps officers and engineers at the plant of North American Aviation, Inc., at Inglewood, Cal.

Details as to the plane's performance thus far were not revealed. The department said merely that the new bomber was an all metal monoplane of conventional design with an internally braced mid-wing. It is powered with two 14-cylinder two-row radial air-cooled engines. Propellers are of the controllable-pitch constant-speed full-feathering type. The plane carries a crew of five and full navigation and radio equipment.

Officials said that the PT-20A, a new primary training plane manufactured by the Ryan Aeronautical company at San Diego, Cal., was undergoing tests at Wright field, Dayton, O. They added that the new trainer was similar in all respects to an existing design, the PT-20, except that it was equipped with a Menasco engine instead of a Kinner engine.

Slight Decline In School Attendance Shown In October

Attendance in Mansfield schools showed a slight decline in October, with the average daily attendance dropping from 96.1 per cent in September to 95.4 per cent last week.

The Sunshine school for handicapped children topped the list in attendance with 98.1 per cent. Tied for second place were the West Fifth street and Deaf school which had 97.8 per cent attendance.

During the month, 3,909 pupils were neither absent nor tardy as compared to 4,337 with perfect records in September.

There were only 18 truancy cases in October, however, as against 34 in September. Eight of the truancy cases last month were in Senior high school, four were in the Johnny Appleseed school, and three in John Simpson junior high school.

Senior high school had 92 tardy cases to head the list. There were 83 in John Simpson junior high school and 76 in Johnny Appleseed junior high. The Bowman school had 68 and the Bushnell school 46.

ARRESTED

Former Prime Minister of India
Taken Into Custody.

BOMBAY, India.—(AP)—Former Prime Minister Bal Gangadhar Kher of Bombay province was arrested today under defense of India rules.

In Oct. 1939, while still head of the provincial government, Kher took a stand similar to that of Mohandas K. Gandhi, leader of Indian nationalists, by offering a resolution in the Bombay state assembly calling on Britain to regard India as an "independent nation."

Mansfield Business Barometers Swing Up

DAILY SCRAPBOOK—

By R. J. Scott

If you should overhear someone talking about an indoor "airport," it won't be necessary to summon the nearest policeman and have the man locked up. Beginning next Thursday, the Frank Lahm cadets, a model airplane club, will take over the gymnasium and use for a proving ground for their latest models, and already the boys are jokingly calling the gymnasium their "airport." Non-members of the club who would like to try out their planes are invited to join members for a trial spin.

They are doing a lot of historical research work at WTAM Cleveland this week, preparing the "Salute to Mansfield" program which will be broadcast Friday, Nov. 29, at 10:30 p. m. Writers Waldo Pooler and Wade Barnes are burning the midnight oil over history and reference books, digging out facts about John Sherman, Frank G. Carpenter, Johnny Appleseed and Louis Bromfield. A Mansfield man, Fred Wilson, musical director of WTAM, is in charge of the program and will sing, Bromfield, who will have a part in the program, is in New York City now, for the making of an "Information Please" movie short.

A well-known Mansfield business man who didn't want his name mentioned was telling friends today how he "bagged" two pheasants yesterday while on a business trip. Driving near Bucyrus, he saw a hunter lose a pheasant out of his coat, apparently without knowing it. The Mansfielder got out of his car and called to the hunter, pointing to the pheasant. Believing the game warden or an irate property owner was after him, the hunter ran, leaving the bird. So the Mansfielder went over and picked it up. A short distance down the road he saw another pheasant near a farm house. Getting permission to shoot it, he took a shotgun from his car and brought the bird down. "I always carry a gun in my car in hunting season just in case I can use it," he said.

Two big turkeys for the Thanksgiving dinner today at the Richland county T. DISCUSS PLANS Downtown Coaches Consider Buying Equipment for Grade Schools.

A program for the year, including the purchase of football uniforms and equipment for grade school boys, supervision of school yard play, and possibly the establishment of a scholarship fund by the Mansfield Downtown Coaches was discussed yesterday by J. G. Blahnik, "head coach" of the association, in a talk before the Optimist club.

Blahnik also discussed membership and a proposed $1,000 budget for the year.

VULTEE STRIKE STILL IN SNAG

Federal Negotiators Unable To Obtain Peace After Week of Conferences.

(By Associated Press)
DOWNEY, Calif.—Government negotiators, striving to iron out a labor dispute which has tied up the big Vultee aircraft plant—and $84,000,000 in military contracts—for nearly a week, still were unsuccessful today.

One of the government representatives, N. Arnold Tolpe, assistant to defense commission labor coordinator Sidney Hillman, left for Washington—but without any announcement regarding progress of the discussions. L. W. Michener, west coast head of the striking union, the CIO National Automobile Workers, headed for Atlantic City and the CIO's national convention.

Major Sidney Simpson, representing the war department, last night adjourned until today a labor-management parley which has been under way since Monday noon with only occasional respite. "No comment" was the Major's only statement as he emerged from the meeting room.

The union wants an increase from 50 cents to 75 cents an hour in the minimum base pay. The company has offered a boost to 55 cents for workers after three months' service and 60 cents after six months.

Meanwhile, the sheriff's office investigated the first report of violence in the strike, which began last Friday. It involved John C. Hatcher, 18, a mailboy at the Aircraft plant.

He asserted he was driving out of the yard to obtain food for guards watching equipment and unfinished planes inside the plant when his machine was forced to the curb by another, two men jumped out and beat him until he was unconscious. He was treated at the plant hospital for lacerations of the mouth.

CHILD DIES

Larry Duane Liebhart, four day old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Liebhart, died Wednesday at the home, Beall road. He was born Saturday. Surviving are his parents, a brother, William, and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Liebhart of Mansfield and Mr. and Mrs. Ira Barnes of Athens.

Private funeral services will be held Friday at 10:30 a. m. at the family home in charge of Rev. Grover Sawyer, pastor of the First Lutheran church. Burial will be in the Pavana cemetery.

CAMOUFLAGE

SAN DIEGO.—(AP)—The sheep quartered aboard the Greek freighter Azhia Thalassini, tied up here because of the war, looked longingly at the green pastures ashore and began bleating. Capt. Onnis Gialouris quickly stopped the noise. He painted the ship's fleece green and fed the sheep grass and hay.

METERED PARKING STARTS ON MANSFIELD STREETS FRIDAY

Metered parking on downtown streets makes its official debut in Mansfield tomorrow.

Beginning at 8 a. m. Friday motorists who expect to park their cars in the business district will have to insert either pennies or nickels in parking meters spotted at 20-foot intervals along the streets.

Installation of virtually all of the 414 manually operated devices was completed this morning by representatives of the Michaels Art Bronze company of Covington, Ky.

So Mansfielders would do well to get a little change if they plan to stop to do any shopping tomorrow.

FILE ACCOUNTS

Campaign Expenses Listed By Three Candidates.

Three more Richland county candidates in the Nov. 5 election had filed their campaign expense accounts yesterday with the county board of elections.

Charles Payne, elected county treasurer, reported expenditures totaling $217. Leslie K. Wagner, Democrat, defeated for county representative, submitted a report showing he spent $318. Neither listed any campaign contributions.

Ralph C. Lutz of Lexington, unsuccessful Democratic candidate for congressman in the 17th district, listed expenditures amounting to $825. He reported receipts of $500 in campaign funds from the National Democratic Campaign committee.

row and carry a few pennies and nickels in their purses.

City officials plan strict enforcement of the ordinance requiring the deposit of either a nickel or from one to five pennies depending on the length of time the motorist plans to leave his car in the parking space along the curb.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton said last night, however, that several officers will be assigned to duty in the business district tomorrow and Saturday for "educational purposes."

Police, he said, have been instructed to "be lenient" with motorists the first few days until they become better acquainted with the new method of "buying parking time."

He added, however, that officers would insist on drivers parking within the lanes marked off on the streets and drivers leaving their cars straddle the white lines would be tagged.

The parking meters have been installed for a nine-month trial period during which time the city will pay $3.75 a month rental, the amount to apply on the purchase price of $49.50 per machine should council decide to buy the meters.

GOOD AS WHAT?

Everything Happens to Car In Two Weeks After Purchase.

LANCASTER, Pa.—(AP)—Robert Anderson, 35, told the court that the salesman said the second-hand car was as "good as new." But within two weeks, Anderson declared, a tire went flat; six quarts of alcohol leaked from the radiator; the oil line broke, freeing 20 quarts of oil in 19 miles; and—the right front wheel rolled off.

NEW CAR SALES SET PAGE FOR UPWARD TREND

Building Figures and Postal Receipts Only Items on Down Grade.

Topped by a 31 per cent gain in new automobile sales, Mansfield business, with two exceptions, continued to point upward, the Chamber of Commerce monthly business review disclosed yesterday.

Only building valuations and postal receipts were off at the close of 10 months, while other divisions showed increases ranging from 31 per cent to 1.5 per cent.

Building valuations, led by a record residential construction program, were off nearly 20 per cent, the Chamber reported, valuations for the 10-month period totaling $1,644,837 as compared to $2,074,620 for the same period in 1939.

Chief reason for the loss was attributed to a $1,000,000 school building program sponsored by the board of education early last year. Postal receipts totaling $307,721 slipped 6.5 per cent. The 10-month total last year was $329,091.

Largest gain was set in new car sales, a total of 2,724 new automobiles being sold in Mansfield so far this year as against 1,779 cars sold during the first 10 months of last year.

Prepaid sales tax receipts, a good barometer for mercantile sales, showed an increase of 14 per cent, the receipts totaling $470,859 at the close of business Oct. 31. Last year's 10 month total was $395,385.

Bank clearings were up 7.8 per cent, showing a $15,000,000 turnover greater than last year. Clearings so far this year total more than $77,000,000. In 1939 they totaled $61,000,000.

The Mansfield Rapid Transit company reported a 1.5 per cent gain in passengers, 1,612,138 persons transported in the past 10 months as against 1,412,992 carried in the corresponding period last year.

Industrial and mercantile employment were both up, a total of 11,562 persons on Mansfield payrolls on Oct. 31, and carloading showed a 7.8 per cent gain.

DAMAGES ASKED

O. S. R. Inmate Named In Suit
Filed By Akron Man.

Paul Parasko, Mansfield, serving a manslaughter sentence in the Ohio State reformatory, was named defendant yesterday in a $5,700 personal damage suit filed in Richland county common pleas court by Eldon J. Morgan of Akron.

Morgan was injured Nov. 10, 1939, on route 30 N at the Greater Lake road where his car and one driven by Parasko were involved in a collision. John M. Irvin, Akron Boy Scout leader who was riding with Morgan, died as a result of his injuries.

Morgan, represented by Attys. Harris, Sacks, and Subrin of Akron, seeks $5,000 for his injuries and $370 for damage to his automobile.

Parasko, who was sentenced for Irvin's death, was granted a parole Nov. 11 and will be released from the reformatory on Jan. 2.

Order Says Former Wooster Ex-1
ly Got Relief In 'Wrong' State.

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Governor Lehman and three other officials have until Dec. 5 to reply to an order to show cause why they should not be restrained from "deporting" A. Mamarenek, N. Y. shoemaker and his family to Wooster, O., for receiving relief although living in this state less than a year.

The order, signed by Federal Judge Samuel Mandelbaum, named Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., Sheriff George A. Casey of Westchester county and Public Welfare Commissioner Ruth Taylor of Westchester, besides Governor Lehman.

Rosario Chirillo, the shoemaker, moved with his wife and five children to Mamarenek in January, 1939, and obtained $116.50 in relief between September and December of that year.

CHANGE OF PLATES

When he came back the birds were gone. To make transportation easier, the thief had taken the truck, too.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

BEAUTY AND THE BISTROS.

(A compendium of candid snapshots taken when the more ornate citizens of Broadway appear in unguarded moments, with their hair down or up—in barber shop or beauty salon, whichever the sex may be.)

Spinrad's barber shop, on 50th street off Broadway, is the perfect setting for a play by William Saroyan—a goofy opus he might well knock off during the course of a shave and haircut, if he ever got a haircut.

Spinrad's is to Broadway tonorially what Lindy's is to Broadway gastronomically. Orchestra leaders, song pluggers, comedians, agents, night club operators—all drift in for a once-over lightly and exhibit their most cockeyed traits when no one more important than the brunette manicurist with the charm of ogling them or their unkempt likenesses in the big mirror.

From the report of the census, Milton Berle is the Spinrad Barroomer. Lathered, eyewitnesses testify that he goes berserk with all the props and polite audience that a barbering salon can provide. This upsets the tradition that Berle needs an old gag or his mother around, because his mother almost never comes around to Spinrad's.

Joe E. Lewis, of whom you might expect some roistering, is quiet and restrained and can usually be found lolling over a racing form. . . . Harry Ritz, of the brothers, however, is as mad as he is on stage or screen. He once paid a barber $5 for the privilege of shaving him.

Maxie Rosenbloom yawns like mad. . . . Willie Howard is a seat-slumper and a great fellow for wearing out a barber by jumping up and down and in and out of the chair.

Bob Hope dozes. . . . Eddy Duchin, who carries around more hair than most of the customers, practices his diction lessons on the unfortunate razor-wielders. Al Goodman tears jokes out of the papers and magazines for Fred Allen, who uses his own material anyway.

Sammy Kaye takes off his shoes while he's being shaved. . . . Abe Lyman smokes his cigar through the latter. . . . The mighty Jack Dempsey shakes his barber's hand goodbye with such a Herculean clasp that the poor fellow doesn't get back into condition until five haircuts later.

Damon Runyon arrives loaded down with papers and magazines, all of which he finishes (except his own column) by the time his hair is cut. . . . Kenny Baker sings while the razor hovers over his Adam's apple. And John Buckmaster always brings with him Scarlett O'Hara's dog.

Bert Wheeler, who cats apples in his vaudeville act, cats apples during a haircut, too. . . . Mario Tosatti, the Hurricane host, insists on keeping his glasses on. The barber just has to work around them.

Monte Proser doubles from the chair to the pinball machine, which devours a fair percentage of his nitery profits. . . . Tenor Frank Parker has a running gag which he perpetrates on Sid, the boss. He comes in an pretends he's walked in the wrong shop—then he orders a complete overhaul.

Paul Hartman makes faces into the mirror. . . . Nick Kenny reads detective magazines. Buddy Clark, the singer, always phones his wife.

The distaff side has tonsorial

At Henrietta's, in the Broadway sector, anything is liable to happen. The Lane sisters used to monopolize the place, always in a hurry, always loaded with scripts and music, always running out with their hair and nail polish still wet.

Ethel Merman, a mahogany-nail-polish user, is a rip-roster as Panama Hattie, but in the beauty parlor she's quiet as a mouse. . . . Shirley Booth gets surrounded by the entire staff and her coker spaniels, and dishes out light gossip on nothing in particular.

Mitzi Green comes in singing. . . . Hannah Williams has been known to bring champagne for the girls who work in the salon, and often she orders beer and lunch for everyone in the house.

Of course no one associates Broadway Rose with a beauty shoppe. The only reason I mention her now is that she once tried to get into Henrietta's—nobody knows why—but she was barred.

F. W. Davidson of Knoxville, Tenn., greeting old friends in Mansfield. The former Mansfielder has an attractive tourist court at the edge of Knoxville on the route to Norris dam and frequently has home-town folks as his guests. . . . Mrs. E. K. Mrs. Frank Maxwell going into the Farmers bank building where she works daily with Mrs. George Draffan on Red Cross Roll Call.

The men who attended the Standard Oil dinner Monday night at the Leland are still talking about the excellent program that was staged by the Accordionettes and the Three Majors from the Englewood Smart studio. Because everyone was interested here are the three young soloists — Jane Gibbs,

ISLAND CHURCH LEADER WOULD RENOUNCE TIES

Philippine Bishop Advocates Strong Nationalistic Body On Taking Office.

(By United Press)
MANILA—Filipino desire for political independence today had its religious offshoot when Bishop Santiago Antonio Fonacier, newly elected "obispo maximo" of the Church of Aglipay, launched his campaign to convert Filipino Catholics and Protestants alike to the Philippines Independent church.

Bishop Fonacier succeeded Bishop Gregorio Aglipay as spiritual leader of the 2,000,000 Aglipayans. Aglipay was the founder of the organization, which broke from the Roman Catholic church in 1902. Bishop Fonacier hopes to establish a purely nationalistic church "of the Filipinos." He advocates severing of all religious ties with other countries.

"It is not for us to sleep on our laurels," he told the consistory of 42 Aglipayans priests and laymen after his election. "It is rather for us to be always active and alert, and to work, work, work. Let us work unceasingly, with enthusiasm and true faith, and let us not rest until we have attained the full realization of those solemn aims which obliged us to separate from the Church of Rome and to found our own Philippine Independent Church, which is the true church of the Filipinos, for the Filipinos and by the Filipinos."

First projected step in Bishop Fonacier's program will be establishment of religious schools and colleges, and especially of a central seminary in Manila, where the church would train young men from the islands.

"What we need most," he declared, "are apostles and ministers of God rich in faith, hope and charity, enthusiastic and active, because the lessons of history teach us that it is not the dogmas and doctrines of a church which most contribute to its triumph but apostles... armed with the faith that can transport mountains and divide the seas."

He admitted his plans for the future were in the nature of dreams.

To Serve Three Years.
Fonacier is the first head of the Church of Aglipay under its new "democratization" program. The church's consistory has evoked an amendment approved in 1906 making the "obispo maximo" a life position. Fonacier will serve for three years, with the right to succeed himself once.

The "democratization" of the church, according to Bishop Fonacier, will be utilized "to re-organize and revitalize the offices of 'obispo maximo' so that everyone in the church, especially all bishops and priests, may be made to work for the church's advancement."

Bishop Fonacier has been connected with the Philippine Independent church since its founding.

On Trial

Mrs. Emma Hepperman is pictured in St. Charles, Mo., court on trial for the poison death of her seventh husband, a Wentzville farmer. Answering Hepperman's advertisement for a housekeeper last March, she married him after a four-week courtship. He died of poisoning in May.

Modern Equipment Provided Now For Chaplains In Army

FORT BENNING, Ga.—(U.P.)—The old-time circuit riders were slay-at-home parsons compared with the army's 1940 model "motorized chaplains."

Under the new War Department orders, each division chaplain will use a one and one-half ton truck and trailer with a mobile public address system for use in recreation and religious meetings.

Each truck will carry a field desk with typewriter, filing cabinets, a small safe and a portable altar.

Other equipment includes kits for celebration of Catholic mass, and Protestant Holy Communion services, hymnals and service books, New Testaments, prayer books, Bibles, rosaries and medals.

Every chaplain also is to have a flag and tent equipment for his personal effects.

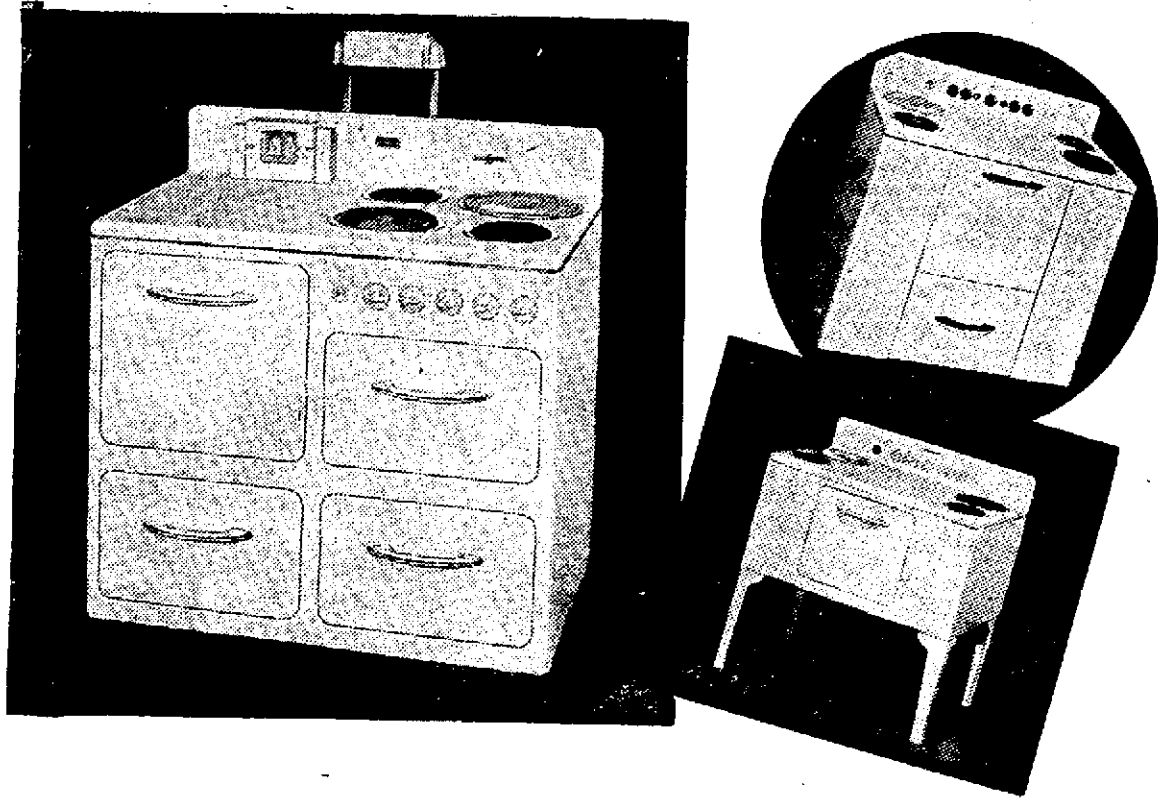

He was ordained at the age of 18 when the movement was gaining momentum from Bishop Aglipay's charges the Roman Catholic church had become arbitrary if not corrupt in the Philippines.

He was "on leave" from the church from 1912 to 1931, during which time he was a political writer on the Asamblea Filipina, a nationalistic Filipino-owned daily which demanded immediate independence for the Philippines and a delegate from 1912 to 1916 to the third Philippine Assembly. He served as senator from 1919 to 1925, during which time he was a member of the University of the Philippines Board of Regents and a member of the second parliamentary mission to the United States in 1922 to ask for independence.

Wearing Apparel Makes Gay Gifts

When it comes to Christmas gifts, there is probably nothing dearer to milady's heart than wearing apparel, and the garments shown above are guaranteed to please her. In the first picture, Miss Patty Palmer is modeling a fitted evening wrap of black wool, which has an attached black velvet hood edged with white fur. (2) Mrs. Tolbert E. Smith is looking in the mirror to admire her hostess gown. Fashioned along princess lines, it has a zipper front closing and back sash. It is made from heaven blue moire taffeta and could very well pinch-hit for an evening dress. (3) Miss Palmer has removed her evening wrap to reveal a formal designed with a fitted bodice of black velvet with full puffed sleeves and sweetheart neckline. The skirt of the gown is of black and gray striped pattern taffeta. Note: You may learn at which Mansfield stores these garments can be purchased by calling The News-Journal, Canal 4251.

Social Season Starts With Week-end Dances

The social season will be inaugurated in the Mansfield area this week-end with two of the city's organizations entertaining with dances. The Our Club will have the first formal function of the season at the Mansfield-Leland hotel tomorrow evening. A buffet supper will be served at 9 p. m. followed by dancing in the ballroom to the music of a 14-piece orchestra from Cincinnati known as the "Shades of Blue." Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Bruce are co-chairmen.

Saturday night from 10 p. m. to 2 a. m. the hotel ballroom will be the scene of the first sorority dance of the season when Delta Theta chapter of Delta Theta Tau entertains. Music for the semi-formal open dance will be furnished by the Merry Maes.

SEW FOR CHARITY.

Members of the Welfare club met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. H. Phelps, 379 Sherman place, and work was done on comforters. The next regular meeting will be held Dec. 3 with Mrs. A. T. Sneringer. Park avenue vest, and members will meet Dec. 18 for a covered-dish dinner and all-day meeting at North Lake park pavilion.

Nomad Members Hear Papers On Two Poets at Luncheon

A ONE O'CLOCK luncheon was served to members of the Nomad club yesterday at the Women's Club when Mrs. Philip Corey entertained. Guests present included Mrs. Avery Hand, Mrs. Fred Wolfe, Mrs. Helen Upson Carpenter and Mrs. Thomas W.

Mrs. B. L. Chase Has Program At Study Club

Miss Mary Engwiler was hostess for a meeting of the Fortnight club Tuesday evening at the Women's Club. Mrs. B. L. Chase had the evening's paper, which was entitled, "Achievements of San Martin and Bolivar for Independence." Refreshments were served at the close of the program.

The next meeting of the club will be held on Dec. 3, when Mrs. J. B. Lindley, jr., will be hostess. "Mexico, A Land of Contrasts" will be the subject of a paper to be presented by Miss Kathleen Mendenhall at that time.

Taylor, Barnesville, O. During the brief business session it was announced that the next meeting will also be a 1 o'clock luncheon at the club with Mrs. James E. Gibson as hostess.

Mrs. William Meihack read a paper on Lucretia Woodworth Reese which had been prepared by Mrs. Louis A. Meisse. The paper pointed out that Mrs. Reese was the forerunner of Sara Teasdale, and that she was not only a poetess but wrote considerable prose. Much of her writing dealt with the spring season.

A. E. Houseman was discussed by Mrs. Clayton C. Wagner. She gave a biographical sketch and told of his direct sarcastic way of writing and his wit. Houseman was a perfectionist, a great Latin scholar, but not a prolific writer. He published only two volumes during his lifetime, a third was brought out after his death by a brother.

Illustrative poems were read in connection with both papers.

Welcome Three Into Newman Mothers Club

Three new members, Mrs. R. O. Morehead, Mrs. Helen Adams and Mrs. Thelma Baxter, were welcomed into the Newman Mothers club yesterday afternoon at the regular meeting which was attended by 31 members. During the business meeting arrangements were made to have the annual bazaar Dec. 6.

Shopping Around...

With MARIANNE

WHEN you've eaten the last scraps of turkey, and Thanksgiving is officially over, you can really begin to give your Christmas gift list some serious consideration. Downtown stores are filled with all sorts of attractive suggestions, and if you start to shop early you'll be sure to find just the thing to please everyone on your list from Aunt Jane to Cousin Jim.

There are so many new colognes on the market for the Yuletide season that I don't know how I can begin to tell you about all of them. . . . And the pretty packages they come in make them even more appealing. . . . One French house has three new fragrances, "Tallspin" (which comes in a red, white and blue poker chip container), "Flippant" and "Balalaika." . . . The latter two come in attractive beaded bottles with colored tops, as do two other popular scents, "Jabot" and "Whisper."

Marianne

A line of toiletries said to be the "all-American fragrance" is called "Yankee Doodle," and the cologne, bath powder, bath salts and bath foam come all done up in patriotic red, white and blue packages. . . . And something new and practical in the gift line are the hand-painted night bottle and glass sets—the bottle being filled with multi-colored bath salts in a combination of floral scents. The bottles come painted with varying predominant colors, and consequently one can be found to harmonize with most any bedroom. . . . There are all kinds of pretty compacts on display downtown now, and the newest ones seem to be snuff boxes—some in oval and others in circular shapes. . . . There are gold ones with etched or silver butter tops as well as some with florally enameled covers.

TABLE decorations quite often become monotonous, and so a gift which would afford a change, would undoubtedly be appreciated. . . . One of the local stores is showing mirrors with openings in the top, which fit over flat dishes, so that flowers can literally "blossom" from them, and then to add variety, there are crystal birds and swans to be used on the mirrors—as well as colorful flowers of painted glass.

Any woman loves to have a manicure case on hand for emergencies between professional treatments, for use, on trips, for quick changes of polish and for bedtime nail care. . . . This Christmas season they're glamorous as well as practical, and one of the most famous manufacturing houses of products for the care and adornment of lovely fingertips has introduced sets varying from tiny knapsack (to be tucked into a purse) to the most luxurious week-end traveling bag ever—with an inner case complete with manicure accessories. . . . All of these kits, no matter what the size and price, contain long-wearing enamel with "pint-sized" lipsticks to match. . . . With such beautifying and practical contents, the containers, too, are quite exceptional in corduroy, faille, lambskin, felt, cowhide and alligator—all as streamlined as a crack airliner.

With any number of holiday dances scheduled, one of those new party bags should prove to be a very welcome gift. . . . They come in phofilm boxes and have gold frames. . . . There are colors and materials to match every dress—ranging from satin and velvet to gold and silver metallic cloth and colorful prints.

NOVELTY NOTIONS: Serving refreshments at any party should be a lot easier with some of those serving trays. . . . Colorfully enameled, they come in regular sizes as well as individual supper sizes. . . . Shoe bags of soft suede cloth and flannel, cut to fit the shoes, prove ideal for traveling. . . . While sets combining velvet-covered clothes hangers, hat trees and garment covers are always useful anywhere.

Note: The styles described above are available in Mansfield shops. You can learn where they may be obtained if you will telephone Marianne at The News-Journal between 1 and 2:30 p. m.—Canal 4251.

Final Review To Be Given Wednesday

Dorothy Fuldheim to Have Program for Dental Clinic.

THE final review in the series being presented under the auspices of the Mansfield Dental clinic at the Ohio theater will be given Nov. 27 when Dorothy Fuldheim, Cleveland, comes to the city to review "For Whom the Bell Tolls," by Ernest Hemingway. The review will be given at 1 p. m. followed by the regular featured movie. Doors will be open at 12:45 p. m.

Mrs. Fuldheim is well known to Mansfield audiences, having appeared here many times in the past few years to give her penetrating talks on world affairs. The reviewer has traveled widely in Europe, and until the last war devastated years, has made an annual trip abroad to collect materials for her talks on Europe, South America, and the United States.

The reviewer turned from teaching to the stage, and then went on the lecture circuit where she has delivered more than 400 different lectures to 2,000 audiences. For the past 12 years Mrs. Fuldheim has been speaking to groups throughout the United States on various topics of current interest.

The first three reviews of the season were given by Katherine C. Bang, Dr. Joseph Remenyi, and Margaret Rowland. Proceeds from the tickets sold by the clinic will be used to provide dental care for indigent children. Tickets for the final review may be purchased at the Book Shop, Mrs. Ward Ingraham is president of the clinic, an organization composed of representative groups in the city, and Mrs. Warren C. Fort, ways and means chairman and vice president, has been in charge of the ticket sale.

Mansfield Stores Haven for Shoppers

It should be easy to make this Christmas a happy one for any woman, because this year there are so many attractive pieces of wearing apparel to put under the tree for her on the holiday morning. At the upper left, Mrs. George Bender is showing an ensemble that could suitably be worn on many occasions. The pale rose dress features a knife pleated skirt and shirt-waist style blouse and is topped by a fitted jacket of soft rose, blue and green plaid wool jacket. Her hat is of blue suede, as are her gloves and shoes. (2) To ward off the chilling winter winds, Mrs. C. Rollin Hunsicker has donned a nutria brown wool coat. Fitted with double-breasted buttons, it has a fluffy collar of lynx-dyed fox. The accessories are brown, and the off-the-face hat is of felt. (3) Mrs. Smith is wearing some gay lounging pajamas which combine full black taffeta trousers and a jacket of red, blue, green and black striped silk chenille. Note: You may learn at which Mansfield stores these garments can be purchased by calling The News-Journal, Canal 4251.

Regard Ensemble When Dressing

By MME. QUI VIVE
Know what to wear and how to wear it and you've got the beauty game lashed to the mast, it will never get you down. If the supplicant for good looks is given to prayers for help, let her beseech her good angel to bestow good taste upon her. It is the most valuable of aids, directing one's course in the right direction. One isn't chasing beauty rainbows; one knows what one wants, chases out and gets it.

Hat, hair, face and figure, there must be a bond between them, linking them together into an attractive ensemble. They must be proportionate. By that we mean that the tall, lanky lady, who wears sweeping draperies and a tall lanky hat is not only lacking in taste, but is guilty of a sartorial crime that offends the fastidious and critical eye. We object, also, to the heavyweight who goes in for silky fluff stuff that makes her appearance more expansive and slaps a fat little hat above her fat little face.

Large women who squeeze their poor footies into tiny, high-heeled shoes in which they toddle unsteadily are completely out of form. Of all types, they need a solid foothold; the human pedals have a considerable load to carry. One sees tiny, dainty women wearing drab-looking clothes. All wrong. They are entitled to sport youthful attire, should revel in it. The shingled bob—yes, we still see it now and then—fights the floppy picture hat; it yearns for a tailored chapeau that suits its severity. The fussy frock does not like being carried around by sport shoes and the tailored robe doesn't feel right with silly kicks that are over-decorated. We observe these offenses all the time. They tell the world that not enough women get down to brass tacks, think things out for themselves, though goodness knows enough time and millions of money are spent in efforts to make the sisters charming to the eye.

We do not believe that the old girls should put on dismal draperies, we believe that gay colors are as respectable as dark ones, but we do not admire the ancient gazelle who travels around in dry goods that should be worn by her granddaughter. A kittenish old lady brings tears to the eyes; she is a sad spectacle.

Over-dressing is a common mistake. Find out beforehand what kind of clothes are to be worn at the evening party—whether or not it is formal or informal—and at tire yourself accordingly. When traveling wear simple, smart dresses that won't crease easily, avoiding details of decoration that may show soil quickly.

Regard yourself in a full-length mirror, that's better than seeing yourself piecemeal. When buying clothes, keep colors in mind, so the color ensemble will be harmonious. It's all fun. The rewards are priceless.

Blame Poor Sight In Darkness Upon Lack of Vitamins

IOWA CITY, Ia. —(U.P.)—If your eyes have difficulty getting adjusted to darkness, blame it on the lack of Vitamin A.

That's the disclosure of University of Iowa research workers who for the past five years have conducted dark adaptation tests at the Children's Hospital under the direction of Dr. P. C. Jeans.

The tests are made as follows: The subject is put in total darkness for 10 minutes. Then a soft light is let into the room for three minutes. For another 10 minutes the lights go out completely and the adaptation tests are made.

If eyes are slow in seeing clearly in this darkness, chances are it's lack of the important vitamin.

Vitamin A is found in animal products, such as fish-liver oils, butter and eggs, and in leafy and yellow vegetables and fruits.

Federation Plans Two Meetings In Holiday Season

With the approach of the holiday season, activities in club circles are more or less curtailed, with an annual Christmas party taking the place of meetings in many cases, and a complete suspension of all functions in others. With only two events scheduled by the Mansfield Federation of Women during the current season, we can look ahead with interest to the late winter and early spring program.

On Dec. 12 members will enjoy a luncheon bridge at the Women's Club, and on Jan. 3 a Federation meeting and tea will be held at the Club. Atty. John L. Catlett will speak at that time on "Your Laughing Heirs."

The next lecture-luncheon of the season will be an event of Jan. 24 when Sydney Montague will speak on "North to Adventure." Robert Kazmayer will give "A Rendezvous With Destiny" at the Feb. 6 lecture-luncheon, while the only woman speaker of the season will be Countess Waldeck who will talk on "Women in the Modern World."

For the annual Federation meeting and tea, April 8, Atty. Marshall C. Moore will discuss "The Trend Away From the Courts." The last event of the year will be a luncheon bridge April 24 at the club house.

Mrs. Schaller Gives Program On Mission

There were 42 members of the guild of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church present for a meeting at the church yesterday afternoon. During the program, Mrs. Herman Schaller told of the Bowers Mission in New York City. Miss Yeager read a poem, and Mrs. John Klingler played a piano solo.

Refreshments were served later by the committee, composed of Mrs. Elizabeth May, Mrs. Ida Foss, Mrs. Anna Gumbel and Mrs. Klingler. The next meeting will be held at the church on Dec. 4.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE NEARS COMPLETION

Figures for P. T. A. Enrollment Releases; Plan Jamboree to Be Held at Simpson School Next Week.

THE drive for an increase of 10 per cent enrollment in Parent-Teacher associations in the city is almost completed, and figures for the various schools were announced late yesterday by Mrs. G. C. Young, council publicity chairman. The membership campaign was conducted by a corps of chairmen in each association.

Those conducting the drive, and their schools and enrollments are Mrs. W. D. Teale, Senior high, 134; Mrs. F. G. Bushman, Johnny Applesseed, 437; Mrs. Clarence Ackerman, John Simpson, 309; Mrs. S. H. Orr, Woodland, 180; Mrs. Roscoe Mangon, Prospect, 303; Mrs. Paul Whipp, Hedges, 324; Mrs. A. L. Hatzfield, West Fifth, 95; Mrs. Frank Richards, Carpenter, 132; Mrs. J. S. Boyd, Western, 114; Mrs. Pearl Miller, Bushnell, 41; Mrs. O. H. Bender, Newman, 143; Mrs. Harold Lepert, Brinkerhoff, 216; Mrs. L. D. McVicar, Bowman, 214 and Mrs. George Searle, Country Day, 17.

At present the total membership is 2,559, and the drives are not completed in all the associations yet.

The most outstanding jump is that of Applesseed which started last spring with a charter enrollment of 58. The drive was conducted by three teams, with Mrs. Jack Roselof, Mrs. Gearld Wagner and Mrs. Herman Brunk serving as captains. At Prospect school the third grade numbers 22 children, and the membership for that room is 44 parents, and five neighbors. Last year the membership there was 178.

Carpenter conducted its drive on the room chart method, promising a treat to the room which has the most parents enrolled at the close of the campaign, while Western had a "party to acquaint" early in the season.

At Newman the fifth grade with an enrollment of 30 students, has 27 parents on the P. T. A. rolls, and Brinkerhoff has 216 members against an enrollment of 235 children.

The drive will conclude next week when a membership jamboree is held at John Simpson Junior high at 7:30 p. m. Each unit will present a part of the program. Mrs. C. A. McClure has served as membership chairman for the P. T. A. council.

Laying out the cards carefully, in order to set up interesting plays in them, is one of the best ways to learn many things about the game. It is a much more intelligent form of solitaire than the kinds usually played by people who waste time to go through some mechanical pattern created by a shuffle and deal. It is truly instructive. There is no better way to become a master of the various kinds of end plays including

This is a hand in actual rubber bridge which came to Edwin N. Moore of the Union League club of New York whose ingenuity in framing up a fancy squeeze play was related yesterday. This deal was against two of his cronies in a real fighting game and he proved he had learned how to handle his squeeze. This time it was a double squeeze on both opponents.

West led the heart K. East overtook the A and returning the heart 7 which Mr. Moore ruffed. He then played the club K to the A but West ended his chance of ruffing out a club loser by leading the spade J. The A won that then the 10 went to the K. East returning the club J to the Q. The only chance now was a squeeze a double one.

Mr. Moore ran spades to the tenth trick. When he led the last one to the eleventh trick he retained the diamond 6 and club 8 with the heart J and diamond A. In dummy West couldn't discard his heart Q which would make the dummy's 1 good so threw off a diamond winner on dummy. East now felt the pincers. If he discarded one of his two diamonds he would set up the J so he tossed the club 10 which set up Mr. Moore's 8 making the contract anyway.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

She turned as quickly as I did to the door and gave Katie the obvious command needed before I could voice it.

"Run back quickly and tell him we are coming," she said majestically and Katie vanished at the command though not before she had flashed me a whimsically reproachful glance which said as plainly as words. But he didn't tell her to come over.

"Do you suppose it's about Richard or Marion?" she asked fearfully as she hurried so swiftly down the hall with me that despite her age and infirmities I did not have to wait for her or to suit my steps to hers.

"Perhaps both," I returned a bit absently for all my being was fused into one burning question. Where was Dicky?

But when we reached my father's room I found no answer to my question. Instead it was he who put the queries, while Katherine who to my surprise, was sitting near him, watched him intently.

"Richard told me," he began as soon as we had entered the room that he had asked Katherine to listen to your conversation with Mr. Tice in order that she might be cognizant of it and thus be ready to aid you more efficiently should you need it. At my request she has told me everything up to the time you began talking. She also has disclosed the voice of the man who took Marion away and I am much interested in it. You have rather an unusual talent of a niece. Will you please repeat the words he man used to Marion very clearly in quotations as faithfully as you can.

I felt as if something had slipped and I asked my flesh. This command of my father's could only mean that he thought he knew the identity of the raucous-voiced man who had treated Marion so summarily.

My father has a 'poker face' but some intuition told me that my intuition had meant something definite to him.

Will you please repeat everything again?" he asked and when I had finished he put me through my paces a third time. Then he turned to his telephone took down the receiver then said: "Never mind a mistake to the operator and replaced the receiver."

It isn't wise to telephone any more than is necessary," he said. Margaret will you please drive me to 'his Tice's' I don't feel quite up to it and I wish to put some questions to her.

"I shall love to drive you," I said and he permitted himself a slow amused smile.

"And feel great relief that I am not reversing the process," he said.

"Oh! no," I disclaimed but I could not help flushing under his comprehending look for he knows my nervousness over his reckless driving the one departure from restraint which he permits himself.

Katherine will you please remain near this telephone," he asked. This is the number my private one to which Richard will telephone when he has news. If he does telephone tell him where we are and an message he has and then telephone us inmediately as Tice's that you have heard from him being guarded in what you say but I do not need to tell you that.

Thank you," Katherine said with a wraith of a smile and I knew that her heart was heavy with foreboding because of the mysterious question concerning her husband's whereabouts which Marion had put.

INDUSTRY SETS UP SCHOOL TO TRAIN WORKERS

California Plane Companies Need Skilled Men For Production Boost.

(By United Press)
LOS ANGELES—The Southern California aircraft industry, manufacturers of 70 per cent of the nation's military airplanes, and smothered by $1,000,000,000 worth of orders, is setting up schools to train its own workers in an effort to eliminate the industry's most serious bottleneck.

With backlogs mounting daily, the lack of aeronautical engineers, sheet metal workers, riveters, welders, draftsmen, tool and die makers, machinists and airplane mechanics has been one of the chief obstacles to a quick speedup of the aircraft industry.

Offer 100 Extension Courses.
Lockheed Aircraft Corporation has started a trade school in its factory with over 4,000 of its 13,000 employees enrolled. Douglas Aircraft company is expanding and accelerating its training activities and has already taken steps to meet the manpower problems which will arise when its new Long Beach plant goes into production.

The Lockheed school offers approximately 100 trade extension courses, covering a period of 18 weeks, two nights a week. The courses include virtually every phase of aircraft construction and are designed to enable the men to fill positions in the rapidly expanding factory for which trained men are not now available. Classes are held in Burbank city high schools and at the Lockheed factory.

In addition to the trade extension courses, approximately 1,500 men are taking special training with the plant. This includes short intensive courses for semi-skilled who are being trained on the job for special assignments for which they have shown aptitude.

Engineering graduates who have majored in mechanical, aeronautical, electrical, chemical or civil engineering are being given one year's training in various departments of the factory to provide a production background for future work as draftsmen, designers and engineers.

Because of the particularly serious shortage of aeronautical engineers, Lockheed is experimenting with a 16-week streamlined aeronautical course in co-operation with California Institute of Technology. One hundred and twenty experienced engineers taken from other industries and engineering projects are now completing this course and if it proves successful, it will be repeated elsewhere throughout the country.

Douglas Aircraft company's new $20,000,000 plant at Long Beach, Cal., when completed, will present a serious problem in providing skilled workmen to man its production lines.

To meet this problem, the Douglas education office is setting up an elaborate employee-training program. In co-operation with the John Dewey Trade school, Douglas will offer a number of special trade extension courses. Many of the teachers will be furnished and an executive of the factory will serve with the Long Beach school board as an advisor and co-ordinator in launching and operating the training program.

Within the Douglas plants themselves, including those at Santa Monica and El Segundo, an intensive educational program is being pursued.

Survey Ends Long Dispute on Height Of Michigan Lakes

LANSING, Mich. — (U.P.) — The State Department of Conservation has determined the highest body of water in the state, bringing to an end an argument of long standing.

Resorters of the Little Summit Lake area, near L'Anse-au-Loup, have been firm in their belief their lake was the highest in the state.

But natives in the vicinity of Big Summit Lake have been equally sure that they lived in a higher altitude.

Surveys recently completed by the conservation department show that Little Summit Lake is just 20 feet higher, lying at an altitude of 1,760 feet above sea level.

RUSH PLANTING

HOLLAND, Mich. — (U.P.) — Residents of this predominantly Dutch community are laboring to finish fall planting so that war in Europe, which prohibits importation of tulip bulbs, will not affect Holland's famed Tulip Festival next May.

Although war-time restrictions have decreased the annual supply of bulbs to American garden lovers by about nine-tenths, Holland planters have made up their quota from domestic stock.

FILM BANNED

MANILA — (U.P.) — The Philippine board of review for motion pictures has decided to ban exhibition in the Philippines of the American film "Hitler, Beast of Berlin."

Manila censors' explanation of the ban was that the picture would cause bitter feelings against all German residents in the picture "tends to excite hatred."

CUBAN PAPERS PRAISE DRAFT

Commend Civic Spirit of Registrants For U. S. Army Service.

HAVANA, Cuba — (U.P.) — Sections of the Cuban press which took editorial notice of conscription in the United States were lavish in their praise of the facility with which it was accomplished and the spirit which made it possible.

Most complimentary of all was Avance, leading afternoon Havana paper, which in a two-column front page editorial declared: "North Americans have given us a shining example of civic spirit by the manner in which they responded to the call for registration. Everyone, rich and poor, employer and workman, stood together in line for long hours awaiting their turn to register in the lists which will make them available for service as soldiers of Uncle Sam."

"Such spirit justified the right of the United States to call itself a great nation, a strong nation ready to offer a united front when the time for action arrives."

"We are not discussing this spirit from the standpoint of militarism but in admiration of the understanding and determination revealed by those involved. Both Roosevelt and Willkie ignored lesser issues in appealing to all to answer the call of country and remember that above all they are Americans. The ready response of millions was the answer."

"This spirit, in our judgment, is the most beautiful, the most noble and the greatest aspect of this registration. We think that this lesson which has been given us by North America should serve as an example to all the nations of the Americas."

GIVES FLAGS

PORTSMOUTH, N. H. — (U.P.) — In eight years Ralph A. Newton has donated 1,555 flags to social, fraternal and civic groups in New England.

Now he's planning to give two Betty Ross flags to each of the 48 states.

Merchants Have Own Barometer At Trading Post

WINSLOW, Ariz. — (U.P.) — Residents of the Winslow Rock area, adjacent to the Navajo Indian reservation, consult neither stock market reports or business reviews for the economic well-being of the Indians.

The infallible barometer of business prosperity or lack of it on the reservation is "coin-button."

In periods of prosperity Navajos use dimes, quarters, half-dollars for buttons and ornaments on their clothing and moccasins. A small copper eye is soldered on the back of the coin to enable the squaw to sew it to the shirt or moccasin.

When times are good on the reservation, coins hang in rows on leather jackets, hats, cuffs, belts and moccasins.

In hard times and when all other money is gone, the Navajo shops and spends his ornamental buttons.

VILLAGE AID VISIONED IN NEW PROJECT

Dr. Arthur Morgan Heading Service Bureau For Information.

(By Associated Press)
YELLOW SPRINGS The machinery of a project to divert the energies of individuals and small groups away from great problems about which they can do little and toward local issues where they can be effective got under way here yesterday.

Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, former chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, announced incorporation of a non-profit publication and information service, Community Service, Inc., to study and report significant ideas and developments in local government and community life.

"In our excessive preoccupation today with the vast national and world issues beyond the reach of individuals and small groups," Dr. Morgan said, "there is a danger that we shall not realize the importance to society in general of developing the communities where we live."

"Particularly, young men and women are inclined to feel helpless when they measure their personal powers against world issues. They do not realize that it is from the grass roots of society that great issues arise, and that there the capacity and spirit for dealing with them must develop."

"In many places throughout the country, however, individuals and organizations are carrying through interesting and original community projects, but without knowing what is being done elsewhere. Community Service, Inc., will call attention to the great variety of ways in which villages, towns, and city neighborhoods can become and remain live and interesting places to live."

Dr. Morgan, former president of Antioch college here, said some of the material gathered probably would be published in newspapers and magazines. He added that the Keith fund of New York and the Marquette fund of Chicago "have taken an interest in the project."

PLANE PLANT EXPANDED FOR DEFENSE WORK

Curtiss-Wright Preparing To Build Spectacular New Interceptor.

ST. LOUIS — (UP) — One of the most spectacular fighting ships in the world will be produced in quantity for the United States Army when Curtiss-Wright Corporation finishes its new plant in St. Louis.

It is the Curtiss Interceptor-Fighter, a ship which is said to climb to over 20,000 feet in four minutes.

The flight test statistics have been kept secret. Appearance of the ship, however, tends to support the reports of its speed in climbing.

Armament the Interceptor will carry is also a secret.

Another radical departure from accepted aircraft design is the new Curtiss-Wright Transport, designed to carry troops at high altitudes. It is the largest twin-engine aircraft in the country and is remarkable chiefly because the fuel economy of only two motors will vastly increase the radius of action of the ship.

With $70,000,000 in combat plane orders from the government, Curtiss-Wright has announced their St. Louis unit will be expanded until it is the largest aircraft plant in the Middle West. Officials have announced they expected to spend about $10,000,000 on the plant before summer.

The present Curtiss plant is turning out six combat or training planes daily.

ATOM SMASHER

University of Pittsburgh To Install Cyclotron.

PITTSBURGH — (UP) — Before another year has passed, the University of Pittsburgh will install a cyclotron, or atom-smasher, on its campus.

Dr. A. J. Allen, associate professor of physics at Pitt, will supervise the construction work.

The atom-smasher will be made available to members of the School of Medicine, the Schools of Engineering and Mines, and the department of physics, chemistry and biology. Industrial organizations in Pittsburgh also will have access to the device.

He Can Visualize Horrors of Current War

Mansfielder Was With Intelligence Service In World War.

By GEORGE SATTLER

When Roy MacDowall, Lincoln Heights, reads about the bombing of London in the newspapers and magazines, he can almost "hear" children screaming, see stricken families gazing numbly at their ruined homes, and feel their futility at the wholesale destruction.

For MacDowall, an ex-Captain in the British Intelligence Service, experienced first-hand for three years all the horror and brutality of the first war and knows that this one is even worse.

MacDowall, who was born in London lived there for a year during the war recovering from a shrapnel wound, also gets a vivid picture of London's destruction from the news accounts. Many of the old landmarks, now being destroyed, are as familiar to him as our own postoffice.

"The most terrible thing about this war," MacDowall said, "is what it is doing to women and children. I saw a few cases of women and children facing an enemy barrage in the last war and I know the terrible effect it has upon them."

"I don't see how they'll ever raise this generation of youngsters in Europe to be normal adults," he added.

While MacDowall was in London during World War I, he experienced several air raids and saw the first Zeppelin shot down over England.

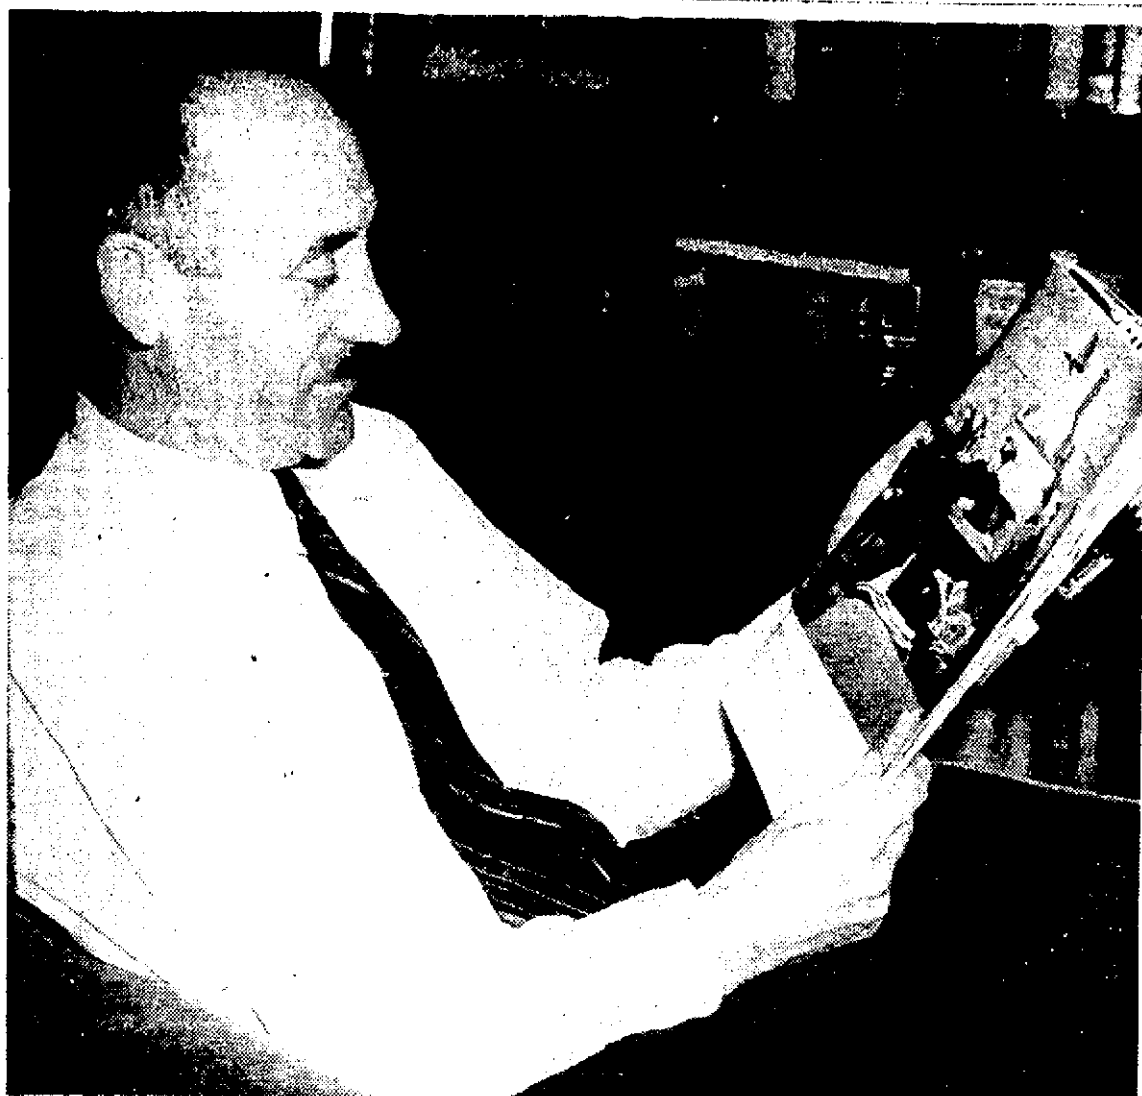

"The first raid I went through I didn't even know what was happening," he said. "I was walking down a London street taking in the sights when suddenly I realized there was no one on the streets. If a London Bobby hadn't chased me into a basement I probably would never have known I had been through a raid."

At present, with most of the big English cities being heavily bombed, MacDowall is greatly concerned about the safety of his sister, a resident of Liverpool. He had not heard from her since in June.

MacDowall served with a Canadian infantry regiment for two years at Ypres, the Somme, Vimy, and Passchendaele, where he was wounded. Unable to return to active duty because of his wounds, MacDowall was commissioned a Captain in the British Intelligence Service and sent to Russia, where he engaged in counter-espionage work.

"None of us who went to Russia knows to this day exactly why we were sent," he said. "Officially we were supposed to be working for the White Russians, but I personally think the Allies had a land grab in mind."

Thinking over some of his experiences, MacDowall recalled how his agents once caught three Red Russians, who had been making a lot of trouble in the vicinity. After notifying London he had caught the men, he received a reply telling him to execute them. While I was worrying about this one day, a Serbian sergeant assigned to me asked what the trouble was and I told him about the execution orders, MacDowall said.

"He told me I didn't need to worry about the men any more, but I didn't know what he meant until I walked past the house where the men were being kept and found them stretched out dead."

"A few days later a Russian woman came to me and said that her husband had been beating her, asking that I do the 'same thing to him that I did to the three Reds.'"

"Because of that Serbian sergeant, I had a reputation in northern Russia over night," MacDowall chuckled.

MacDowall, an employee of the state highway department, left the British army in 1919, coming to Mansfield 10 years ago. He lived in Chicago previous to coming here.

A cousin of MacDowall's is now a brigadier general in charge of a tank unit in the Near East. His only brother was killed in the last war.

aiming at direction on his own, he assisted on "Tonight Is Ours" and "The Eagle and the Hawk" (1933) before soloing on "Cradle Song" and the successful "Death Takes a Holiday." Then he tried all kinds of pictures, including musicals, to find his favorite. The one he's making now is different: "I Wanted Wings." It has developed into an "aviation epic."

Leisen believes "Arise My Love" is getting a hand because it's a picture with something to say: with characters who speak up and call "a spade a spade instead of a pink ornament for a mantelpiece."

It was banned at first by the movie code, but passed when the Colbert-Milland stop-over in Compiègne forest was labeled "innocent."

Leisen was left jobless amidst a depression. He'd been getting $750 is traveling well at the box-office and in critical hearts. He has made successful films before, but it has taken him a long time to reach the top—including 12 years he spent as art director under Cecil B. DeMille.

This apprenticeship, probably due to Leisen's unquenchable thirst for laughs in a mad business, has not affected his style. The two men's "touches" are as far apart as the blow of a sledge-hammer and the brush of angel's wings.

I would not imply that Leisen is an angel; to the contrary, he is quite a gay devil, with a sophisticated sense of humor that plays pretentiousness and says "Aw, nuts" to high-drown folders.

An architect when DeMille took him on, Leisen's first assignment was to design costumes. He did this successfully enough to win a berth as art director and must have acquired a reputation for DeMille's lavishness—when Cecil B. quit production for a world tour, Leisen was left jobless amidst a depression. He'd been getting $750

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Mitchell Leisen, once an extra himself, is popular with extras. Some of them, in an informal election, have declared him the "most popular" director.

Here is the reason: When Leisen was an extra, he was forever dismayed because directors never told him what he was supposed to be, why he was in a picture, what his presence meant to the story. Extras were told to "walk past" or "talk" or "dance"—without any knowledge of the reasons behind orders, without explanation of the situation.

So Leisen treats extras as actors. When they assemble on one of his sets, he takes time to explain exactly what they, as characters in the story, are supposed to contribute.

"They never fail," he reports. "They are actors—why shouldn't they be treated as such?"

Leisen has new stature now as director of "Arise My Love," which

MINING 'OAKIES' EVER HOPEFUL IN GOLD QUEST

Year's Return Averages Only $462 For Prospector, U. S. Bureau Finds.

(By United Press)

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah. They take to the hills in Utah in the never-ending quest for gold, but the chief worry of the prospector who makes more than enough to feed himself and his mule, or fuel his battered auto, is not an annual income tax report.

His principal problem, judging from a report of the U. S. Bureau of Mines, is how to buy enough food to keep alive and sufficient supplies to operate one more year from the $462 he receives annually for months of back-breaking effort.

Placer mining was the basis of many fabulous fortunes when the west was young, and almost every creek and river yielded gold dust or silver ore.

Long Odds Taken.

And not even the most discouraging report will stop scores of prospectors—amateurs and bearded veterans—from hitting the trail, hoping to uncover some hidden bonanza that 60 years of diligent searching has not already disclosed.

In recent years, "Oakies," unemployed bookkeepers, farmers, clerks and laborers have swelled the ranks of those who go into the hills in search of gold. Grizzled prospectors still have their pack mules, but ramshackle automobiles and trucks have become a partner to the mule in beating trails across Utah mountain ranges.

Yet a study of the bureau of mines report shows that not one in 100 makes more than the barest living.

Few Placer Mines.

Of 186 mines operated in Utah last year, only 11 were placer operations. Of this number, 175 gave up 2,094,097 tons of gold, silver and lead ore valued at $62,725,551.

While the larger mines yielded more than 2,000,000 tons of ore, placer operations gave up only 145 fine ounces of gold and 25 fine ounces of silver. Converted into cash this produced $5,092 to be shared among 11 operators who worked long hours daily for almost the entire year.

And the veteran prospector who has spent long years separated from civilization following the lure of gold will admit "there ain't much sense in it, is there?" But the spring thaws in the mountains will find the same veteran leading his mule into the mountains for "just one more crack at it," because "maybe I'll hit it this time."

CORNERSTONE

GETTYSBURG, Pa. — (INS) — The proposed $200,000 Gettysburg College chapel will use a three foot cube chunk of marble, cut from the Jerusalem quarries that produced stone for King Solomon's Temple some 3000 years ago, as a cornerstone. The rock was dispatched on the last boat to leave Jerusalem before Italy entered the war.

Speaks In City

Shown above are Rev. and Mrs. John A. Duryea of the Oriental Missionary society who will speak at the society's convention to be held at the United Brethren church, Park avenue east, Friday and Saturday. They will discuss conditions in China and Korea and will show pictures of the effects of Chinese-Japanese war. Rev. and Mrs. Duryea recently returned from China.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN BURIED

WILLARD — Burial was made in Greenlawn cemetery Wednesday of the body of an unidentified man found hanging in the woods near here last week.

The body was discovered by hunters on the opening day of pheasant season and was viewed by hundreds of persons in an unsuccessful attempt to identify it.

BARN BURNS

LOUDONVILLE — Flames of unknown origin completely destroyed a large sheep barn on the F. D. Burnside farm, three and a half miles south of here, yesterday afternoon.

The fire was discovered at 4:30 p. m. by Harold Enslow, tenant on the farm. Drivers of two passing trucks stopped to help Enslow remove farm equipment from the burning structure.

Naples, Italy, is built in the form of an amphitheater.

GETS PICTURES IN DRILL SHAFT

Photographs Every Foot of Test Holes In Flood Control Project.

EUGENE, Ore. — (UP) — Taking trips up and down 80-foot shafts only 3 feet in diameter is all in the day's work for Nelson Paris, 25. He photographs every foot of space during his jaunts for the army engineers who are working on the Willamette Valley basic flood control project.

The pictures, printed and pieced together, show every fissure and defect in the rock structure that must eventually form the foundation for the gigantic earthwork and concrete dams being constructed.

"Shooting" pictures of drill test holes is a new method in this country, according to B. E. Torpen, engineer in charge of the project. It gives a clearer idea of the earth's structural condition than the studying of the diamond-drill core.

In the diamond-drill process, the drill is sunk into the ground, the core yanked out and inspected to determine the condition of the foundation material. The core often breaks, however, and even while intact the position of the fissures is guesswork.

The engineers were using the diamond-drill method on the Cottage Grove damsite when they encountered unusual structural conditions. It was suggested pictures of the hole made by the calyx drill would solve the problem, and Paris was called.

No sooner was the young photographer lowered into the deep and narrow hole than water fell on his flash bulb, causing him to ascend to comb exploded glass from his hair.

Days later he tried again equipped with a frame to hold his photo-flash bulb and camera which provided a shield to prevent water from striking the bulb.

He was successful and soon had "shot" seven calyx drill holes not only once—but twice. The double duty is necessary to picture both sides as engineers must estimate the degree of slope in the fissures and rock faults.

Shelby Whippets Share NCO Title Twice In Three Years

SHELBY—For the second time within three years a Shelby high school team coached by William Query has tied for the championship of the North Central Ohio conference.

Although this year's eleven was not as good as the undefeated team in 1938, Coach Query's team shared the championship with Bucyrus and Marion Harding. It was in 1938 that the Whippets tied Galion for the title.

The Whippets placed second in the league in 1939.
Shelby won seven of nine games this year. The season's record includes wins over Norwalk, 12 to 6;
Willard, 14 to 0; Crestline, 21 to 13; Ashland, 7 to 6; Galion, 27 to 6; and Mt. Vernon, 17 to 6. They lost to Mansfield by a 27 to 0 score and to Marion, 19 to 6.

Ten seniors played their last game for Shelby this fall. They are Bill Daugherty, Richard Wilney, John Hazelwood, Dean Hunter, Charles Till, Paul Hartz, Tom Stock, Tom May, Paul Stroup and Edwin Dick.

Hopes for the 1941 season remain on the shoulders of all-NCO fullback, Bob Laubie, and Junior Boncutler, who made the second honorary team of the circuit.
Since starting a winning streak late in 1937, the Whippets have won 21 games, lost six and tied two.

Barons Turn Back Rivals, Lose Goalie

Cleveland Team Registers
4 to 3 Victory.

(By Associated Press)

The Springfield Indians and the Cleveland Barons, leaders of the eastern and western divisions of the American hockey league, are confronted with a shortage of goalies—in fact the same goalie.

The Barons have been getting their share of tough breaks early this season and last night lost their second netminder in three games when Alfie Moore was forced out at the end of the second period against New Haven.

This hurt Eddie Shore's undefeated Indians as much as it did the western division leaders because Moore was supposed to play for Springfield tonight at Indianapolis. Now neither team has a goalie but Springfield has a game right away and Cleveland hasn't.

Charley Rayner, who has been holding forth as the Springfield backstop was recalled by the New York Americans because of an injury to Earl Robertson and Moore had been engaged as a substitute.

In spite of the injury to Moore, the Barons managed to edge out a 4-3 overtime victory over the Eagles, with Gordon Baxter, the practice goalie, working in Cleveland's net. Jake Millard scored the winning marker nine seconds after the start of the extra period

Phillips and Shiplot Only Players Back

Forward and Guard Principal Cogs as Coach
Hoffman Moulds Quintet Together.

BY CHARLES MARTIN

THE TASK of moulding together a winning basketball team at Mansfield high this season appears to be a difficult one for Coach Vern Hoffman.

With only two regulars returning to form the nucleus of the 1940-41 quintet, Mentor Hoffman is searching far and wide for tall athletes to handle the rebounds.

Veterans back are Jack Shiplot, a forward, and Harry Phillips, a forward. Both performed in impressive style last year and Hoffman is depending upon them to come through.

Mansfield's cage pilot saw his proteges in action for the first time Wednesday night and was enthusiastic by the way the first two teams handled the ball.

They appeared faster than last year's club and were accurate in passing the shooting. From all indications a tall center would make the team a contender for district honors.

Missing from the 1940-41 squad are Russ Beer, lanky center, and Gene Miller, classy forward. Both were six feet tall and capable of handling the rebounds against tall rivals.

Their opening game against Columbus South at Columbus a little over two weeks away, the Tygers are working hard to perfect an offense.

"We must depend upon speed to overcome the height and I am working on a fast-breaking offense to off-set that advantage," Hoffman stated yesterday.

"I've had the boys using a shifting man-to-man defense and the way they work together may spell trouble for a number of our opponents."

"With two full teams available for varsity duty, we might be able to develop a dangerous com-

Besides the two veterans, Hoffman has Dick Burkholder, a forward, who saw some service in the 1939-40 season.

Youngsters who look promising include Dean Emmer, Bob Win-bigler and Jim Robinson, guards;
Joe Romano, Al Lager, Earl Packer, Dean Hahn and Dick Flockenzier, forwards, and Bruce Mc-Ginty and Dick Keefer, centers.
Hahn and Flockenzier are up from John Simpson Junior, high.

The Tygers face a tough 19-game schedule and after invading the Capital City to face South high, they return to tangle with Findlay in the Senior high gymnasium Saturday.

The complete schedule follows:

Dec. 6—At Columbus South.
Dec. 7—Findlay.
Dec. 12—Hamilton.
Dec. 14—At Elyria.
Dec. 20—At Canton McKinley.
Dec. 27—Sandusky.
Jan. 3—Zanesville.
Jan. 7—At Shelby.
Jan. 11—Columbus North.
Jan. 14—At Ashland.
Jan. 17—At New Philadelphia.
Jan. 21—Youngstown Chaney.
Jan. 31—Bellevue.
Feb. 1—At Mt. Vernon.
Feb. 6—Akron West.
Feb. 11—Ashland.
Feb. 15—Shelby.
Feb. 21—At Massillon.
Feb. 28—Canton McKinley.
